A BILL IN EQUITY.

Suit Brought Against the Philadelphia and Reading Railway.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—A bill in equity was filed to-day in the clerk's office of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania against the Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company and the Philadelphia and Reading Coal Company. The plaintiff is Moses Taylor, of New York, who sets forth that he is the holder of $100,000 in first mortgage bonds of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, executed December 1, 1876, to Edwin M. Lewis, and a bond issued by assignment by the railroad company of the bond to the Coal and Iron Company in the sum of $2,000,000, conditioned for the payment; of $10,000,000 in twenty years from date, that said bond is secured by certain mortgages executed by the Coal and Iron Company to George De B. Keim. The bill then sets forth that the Railroad and Coal and Iron Companies are both insolvent, and have been compelled to suspend payment; that the companies employ the services of 25,000 men; that both companies are really operated under the same management, and that an improvement in the coal and iron business is all that is necessary to restore the companies to a condition of prosperity. The bill concludes that in the meantime a receiver or receivers of said railroad and coal companies be appointed with such power and authority in regard to the preservation and use of the same as to the Court shall seem best adapted to protect and promote the interests of all persons having any interest therein.

PARIS, May 24.—In the election at Lyons for a member of the Chamber of Deputies, Blanqui (Communist) obtained a slight plurality. Another election will be held.

THE COMMUNIST DEMONSTRATION.

PARIS, May 24.—The first sign of a Communist demonstration Sunday was given by the assembling of a small knot of people around the Bastile Column, who were soon ordered by the police to disperse. Shortly after two men arrived with wreaths, but were immediately arrested. The fact of their arrest caused a crowd of 500 or 600 people, and unsuccessful attempts were made to rescue the prisoners. Blows were freely exchanged, and several would-be rescuers were arrested. Three of the persons arrested proved to be reporters and were immediately released. At 2 p. m. forty persons assembled at the Bastile column, but were speedily dispersed by the police. At 3 a procession of six hundred people, many carrying red bouquets and wreaths, defiled in front of the wall where the Communists were shot in 1871, placing flowers against the wall as they passed. At 4:30 there were three more arrests, but this was the last incident of the day's proceedings.

LEON SAY'S CANDIDACY.

The full meeting of all groups of the Left in the Senate adopted Leon Say as their candidate for President of the Senate by 56 votes against 53 in favor of Le Royer. Pelletan, Vice-President, renounced his candidacy in favor of Le Royer. It is not yet known whether M. Jules Simon will accept the candidacy offered him for the same position by a portion of the Left Center. The Right would probably also support him.

DUBLIN, May 24.—The Mansion House Committee report in hand £23,880. It will not last three weeks. Earl Cooper gave £500 to the committee.

P. J. Smyth has withdrawn his resignation of his seat in Parliament. He explains that his resolve to resign was taken hastily.

AN EMIGRANT TRAIN STORMED.

CORK, May 24.—On the arrival at Mallow, Sunday, of a train containing emigrants from Kerry on the way to America, the train was stormed by 500 men of the South Cork militia, who beat the emigrants most unmercifully and ousted them from the carriages. Some of the emigrants were seriously injured. The militia had just been disbanded after their annual training.

Germany.

LONDON, May 24.—The South German Government organ states that the Prussian Government would not be displeased if the bill relative to the ecclesiastical laws were defeated, as Bismarck only desired to show his readiness to conclude peace and demonstrate to influential circles and the public that the Ultramontanes are not working for spiritual peace but for an increase of political power.

BERLIN, May 24.—A Correspondent at St. Petersburg writes that Gen. Melikoff recently submitted to the Czar a proposal for the establishment of a two house assembly. The Czar deprecated the suggestion and said he left further reforms in the hands of the Czarowitch after his death.

England.

LONDON, May 24.—Lorillard's Geraldine has been scratched for the Epsom summer meeting.

IMPRISONMENT FOR LIBEL.

LONDON, May 24.—Mrs. Georgina Weldon, convicted three months ago of libeling Manager Reveire, of the Covent Garden promenade concerts, and bound over, was sentenced today to four months' imprisonment for repeating the offense. The sentence dates from conviction, and is therefore only one month's imprisonment.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 24.—The famine rages in Van Alashkad and Basnkalith, where the deaths are innumerable.

THE PROPOSED REFORM.

It is said the prospect of the Western Powers using a pressure to compel Turkey to carry on reforms prescribed in the Berlin treaty has caused Russia to endeavor again to gain influence in Turkey by adopting a more lenient cause and that the execution of the assassin of Col. Comeraoff will not be insisted upon by Russia.

Spain.

MADRID, May 24.—Two thousand spinners participated in the wrecking and subsequent burning of a mill at Barcelona. Forty-three persons have been arrested.

End of the Labor Troubles at Omaha.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, NEB., May 24.—The labor troubles are settled. The strikers returned to work this morning and everything is quiet. The Smelting Works Company has really given no increase of any consequence. The strikers have lost heavily by their action, and will not be in haste to repeat the experiment. Gov. Vance returned to the capital this morning. The militia has been sent home. The city companies retire from duty, and at this hour (noon) the smelting works are fixing up and getting to business as fast as possible. Affairs on Friday were in a very critical state, but the prompt, energetic action of the State authorities averted what bade fair to be of very serious consequence, and once more we have escaped a labor riot, though the general opinion is by a very close shave.

Marriage of Felix Adler.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Prof. Felix Adler, of the Society for Esthetic Culture, and Nellie Goldmark, were married to-day in Brooklyn by Mayor Howell.

Arrested on Suspicion.

LOCKHAVEN, PA., May 24.—George Wagoer, a carpenter, has been arrested on suspicion of being the murderer and robber of Mrs. Mary Friedel, then setting fire to the house.

A LOVERS' QUARREL.

I could not hear all that they must have said;
But as I sat beside the little stream
I watched them part, with just one angry word.
She passed me quickly, with a down-drooped head,
Red cheeks, eyes flashing with a scornful gleam,
A hasty step, as by deep passion stirred;
She did not turn, nor look back where she stood;
But vanished quickly in the thick green wood.

I watched him sigh, then noted how he gazed
At her retreating form; he whispered low
And softly to himself; in deepest thought
He whispered: "Is she vexed?" then was amazed
That 'twas, in truth, she really meant to go.
He looked once more, as if indeed he sought
To bring her back; but on she went that day;
Then he went, too—but 'twas the other way.

They never met again; but oft I see
The girl, a woman grown, come by this seat,
And gaze into the stream with tear-worn eyes!
And then I wonder why such things should be!
If she had turned her head or stayed her feet,
Life would have altered, love's bright, sunny skies
Shone o'er her ever! 'Tis but things like this
That form our lives, and make our woe or bliss.

PARISIAN MARRIAGES.

How the Preliminaries Are Arranged—A Fashionable Trousseau.

[From the Parisian.]

Our lady readers will perhaps be interested to know how a grand marriage is arranged at Paris. The preliminaries are generally arranged between the two families with the help of the notaries; less often the marriage is more romantic and springs purely from love, in which case the traditional steps of courtship and marriage are much modified. Supposing, however, that a marriage has been recognized as advisable between two families, the first thing to do is to arrange an interview between the young folks. For this purpose some neutral ground is generally chosen—a reception at a friendss house, a concert, a ball or the theaters. The opera is preferred by the world of fashion; the opera comique is popular with the bourgeoisie and the provincials. The young man sits in the orchestra and the young girl, dressed in her best, is placed in front of a box. Between the acts the young man pays a visit to the box and is presented. The next day he pays a visit to the father and makes a formal demand of the young lady's hand. If he is accepted, he begins to pay court to the young girl. Every day, at this stage of the proceedings, the young man is admitted to the house of his future wife as if he were one of the family. He is called by his Christian name. The day after the "accordailles," or his acceptation by the family, he presents his future wife with a ring, always the same, one pearl or two pearls mounted with two diamonds. You may see these rings by the score in the jewelers' shops. Every day, too, he sends a bouquet of flowers. Nowadays these bouquets are splendid and cost a small fortune, for it is the custom to envelop them with lace, which is sometimes replaced by watered ribbon, on which the name of the young girl is embroidered. In aristocratic families the first person to whom the marriage is announced is the Pope, who sends his benediction by telegraph, on the day of the ceremony at the church. The mother, accompanied by her daughter, visits her friends in order to inform them of the happy news. In Madame de Sevignes' days a young girl's wedding trousseau only contained three dresses. In the year of grace 1880, a wedding trousseau in high life is a very grand affair and comprises twelve dresses, all made up with stockings, shoes, sun shades and hats to match. The trousseau, together with the linen, is worth from twenty to fifty thousand francs. In the trousseau of the Princess Isabella de Groy, the wife of the Archduke Frederick, of Austria, all the linen is counted by the gross. There are twelve dozens of everything. The wedding presents, the "corbeille," are no longer sent in a basket covered with bows and ruches of ribbon. The modern "corbeille" is a piece of furniture, a chiffonier, a work-table or what-not. A few presents only are placed in it and the rest are sent. A purse full of gold is always hidden in one of the drawers; it is the share of the poor, the charity purse. It is no longer the custom for the bridegroom to present the traditional cashmere shawl. That has gone out of fashion. The "corbeille" of high life now contains two lace dresses, one white and one black, two velvet dresses not made up, two or three satin dresses and two fancy dresses, mantles and sorties de bal. Fans of all degrees of splendor, scent bottles, a necessaire and a card case are indispensable. "Bibelots," too, are represented in the "corbeille" by groups in Saxe, Louis XV. chatelaines, fans painted by Watteau, or any agreeable and precious knickknack which the fancy of the bridegroom can suggest and the curiosity shops furnish. On everything the young lady's crest, motto and monogram figure, and on her church service her armorial bearings, with all their quarterings, will be displayed au grand complet. In the matter of jewelry we may add that pearls are now esteemed higher than diamonds. A necklace of pearls of five rows is worth 500,000f, or $100,000. It is no longer the custom to exhibit on the day of the signing of the contract the presents given to the bride by her friends and relatives. In England they publish the list of the presents and their donors in the Court Journal and the local newspapers. Here the bride thanks each of those who have thought of her, and adds their tributes of friendship to the others. On the day of her marriage the bride wears only the jewels that have been given to her by her mother and husband.

J. RUSSELL YOUNG.

His Ups and Downs in the Field of Journalism.

[From a New York Letter.]

John R. Young will spend the summer at Newport with his family—this being due to Bennett's admiration of his genius. Bennett has determined to gather his friends, so far as possible, in that center of opulent aristocracy. He has taken a cottage for his sister and her husband (Bell), and will also include John R. Young in his hospitality. It seems fitting that the latter should have some recreation since he has been so long subjected to arduous labor. His tour with Gen. Grant was anything but a sinecure. He wrote incessantly, and was so ambitious to produce a first-class correspondence that his application was of an intense nature. Previously to that, he was one of the ablest editorial writers on the Herald staff, and, going still further back, we reach his tremendous struggle for a foothold in independent journalism.

It is just ten years since John R. Young established the Standard. Two years had elapsed since he left Philadelphia to accept a leading position on the Tribune. He was so brilliant a writer that Greeley was fascinated with his editorials and he soon became managing editor. While in this position he incautiously unbosomed himself to a perfidious friend who sold the letters to Dana for (as it is said) $100. They were published in the Sun and produced such a sensation that Young resigned his position and was succeeded by Whitelaw Reid. After a careful survey of journalism in all its aspects Young reached the conclusion that there was an opening for another two cent paper, and hence he started the Standard. It appeared on the 30th of April, 1870, just ten years ago, and was marked by extraordinary ability.

The result, however, soon showed that its founder had made an error. The new journal was begun at an unsuitable time. The shrinkage had just set in and a general decline was pervading all kinds of business. The ablest papers found it hard to make both ends meet, and hence it was a poor time for a new effort. Young, however, made a hard fight for success. He sunk every dollar he had and also $100,000 borrowed of his friends, but at the end of two years a Sheriff's levy smashed the concern. Young showed great pluck under this prolonged disaster. No sooner had the Standard become an assured failure than he formed an arrangement with the Herald, and he stepped from the ruins of the one into the best parlors of the other. Bennett was glad to strengthen his staff by so able and versatile a writer, and the once unfortunate editor found himself under good pay and high appreciation. Had he indeed formed such an arrangement immediately after leaving the Tribune, what an immense saving would have been made both in expense and in trouble! Unfortunately, however, the lessons of experience generally come too late. For seven years Young has enjoyed Bennett's confidence, and a highly satisfactory reward is found in the invitation to pass a summer at Newport.

WANTS HIS PRESENTS.

Mr. Livingston's Singular Suit Against Mr. Rosenbaum.

[Poughkeepsie Cor. New York Times.]

Morris Livingston, a well-to-do Israelite, is a resident of Beaver City, Utah. Miss Rachel Rosenbaum, a prepossessing young lady, about 20 years of age, resides in this city. She is a daughter of Jacob Rosenbaum, a wealthy merchant tailor, who does an extensive business in this and adjacent counties. The Rosenbaums are well and favorably known in Jewish circles in Kingston, Newburg and New York City. Mutual friends of Livingston and the Rosenbaums undertook to bring together the Utah man and the Poughkeepsie belle. Livingston came on East, and visited in this city. He met Miss Rosenbaum in social circles frequently, and the result was the pair were engaged to be married. It is said it was a case of love at first sight. The engagement became generally known, and late last fall Livington returned to Utah with the avowed intention of coming back in the spring and claiming his promised bride. Before leaving here, Livingston presented his fiancee with a handsome diamond ring, necklace and other valuable jewelry. Correspondence followed, and for a time the course of true love ran smoothly along. Through some channel Mr. Jacob Rosenbaum, the father of Rachel, discovered that Livingston had already been married to a Western lady, and subsequently had been divorced from his wife. Not being anxious to have that kind of a son-in-law, Mr. Rosenbaum wrote to Mr. Livingston and requested that the engagement be terminated at once. Letters of a decidedly lively nature, it is alleged, passed between the parties, which resulted in Livingston requesting that the presents bestowed upon Miss Rosenbaum should be restored to him at Utah. From all accounts, Mr. Rosenbaum refused to comply with Livington's request, and a civil suit was threatened. Threats of the law proving abortive, Mr. Livingston placed his case in the hands of a law firm of this city. Proceedings have been commenced against Rosenbaum for the recovery of the trinkets, on the ground that they were not given as an absolute gift, but on the condition that a marriage should follow between the parties. The engagement having been broken, Livingston claims it is only fair that the jewelry should be returned to him. The case, unless settled before coming to trial, will be tried before the June term of the Supreme Court in this city. In the meantime Livingston's evidence will be taken by deposition in Beaver City, Utah. The outline of the defense is foreshadowed, as follows: While Livingston was here he was entertained at the Rosenbaum residence; a banquet, the cost of which was considerable, was given in his honor, and the jewelry referred to is held as an offset to the same. The case excites much interest in Jewish circles and in society generally.

A Curious Fact about Bass.

In a recent letter, Seth Green, who is authority on all matters piscatorial, discourses briefly on the best mode for angling for bass. Among other statements he makes the following, which will be interesting to a great many "simple wise men" who have the good sense and leisure to go a-fishing:

"If the fish is on the lower fly, you will not take any more, but if he is on one of the upper flies, you will be sure to take more if there are any in sight." We learned this fact and published it years ago as a curious habit of the bass family. But we knew the fact long before we discovered the reason of it. Nothing in our angling experience ever caused us more perplexity or so greatly excited our curiosity. It took us a week of patient observation on what used to be the best trolling ground on the St. Lawrence—in the neighborhood of Gananoqua—to clear up the mystery. But we finally succeeded to our entire satisfaction, and here is the simple solution: The bass is a social fish. He likes company. Where there is one there are more. They move in schools. When one strikes the troll there are always others in the neighborhood. When the lookers-on see the struck fish "cutting up" they "go for him" under the impression that he has found a "good thing," of which they are unwilling he should have the monopoly. As the angler, on feeling the strike, at once "reels up," the ravenous rascals follow in pursuit, but never pass their leaping and floundering companion, because they fancy he is trying to seize and gorge the "tit-bit" they wish to share with him. This purpose keeps them either even with or behind him, but they never pass him. Hence none ever take the fly above the one upon which the captive is hooked, but are pretty sure to be beguiled by any fly below him.

An Animal That Wouldn't Scare.

[From the San Antonio Herald.]

A vagrant ass stood beside the track of the Sunset Railway at the depot a few mornings ago; an engine moved slowly up; it stopped within a few feet of the ass; the engineer blew one of those terrible screams, prolonged and earpiercing; such a blast as makes a sleeping Millerite dream of the day of judgment. Did the ass scare? Not worth a cent! Did he shake the sloth from his limbs, erect his tail and speed away like the asses of Bassorah, faster than the Bedouin coursers run back to the chaparal? No, he didn't. He turned one ear to the engine, just as a deaf man uses his tin ear-trumpet, and caught every particle of the sound. And when the steam-blown whistle ceased its notes and all the echoes died away the animal straightened out his neck, opened his mouth, and in a voice that deafened all the railroad men and caused the freight clerk to drop his pen, roared: "I can't! I can't! I can't! I can't be beat! be beat! I c-a-n-'t be-be-be-be beat!"

CASTLE GARDEN.

Facts About Immigration—Receiving the New-Comers.

[New York Cor. Cincinnati Gazette.]

The statements published concerning emigration certainly are impressive, but only a visit to Castle Garden can give one a correct idea of the immensity of the population pouring in upon America. Castle Garden is the first point of the city visible as one comes up the harbor. It was not built for emigration purposes, and had been in other use for a half century, when its convenience led to its present occupation. Although originally a fort, it was never needed for defense, a purpose for which, indeed, it was not really available. It was then dismantled and used as a place of recreation, at which time its present name was adopted. An ambitious firm (French & Heiser) leased it of the city authorities and fitted it up for ice cream and similar entertainment. It was connected with the main land by a spacious bridge, and its parapet afforded fresh air and a fine view of the harbor. The vast area was rooted, and music was furnished for dancing parties. In order to keep out improper characters a small admittance fee was required, but it was refunded in the shape of refreshments. Such was the Castle Garden forty years ago. When Barnum brought Jenny Lind to this city it did not contain any structure of sufficient size to contain the expected audience except Castle Garden. Hence the latter was at once hired and fitted up with seats, and here the Swedish nightingale first met an American audience. Barnum managed the affair in his usual adroit manner. The seats were sold at auction, and an enterprising hatter purchased the choice at a premium of $142, thus making it a first-class advertisement. The others brought from $5 to $20, and to add to the furor Barnum pledged the entire proceeds of the first night to the Fire Department. The receipts were $10,000, and were promptly paid. The second concert was also a charity, and it was then announced that the wonderful vocalist would devote a large portion of the proceeds to beneficence. This led the public to contemplate Jenny Lind as an angel of mercy. Pious people, who avoided other entertainments, crowded to her concerts, and a general enthusiasm added to the charms of her voice. When this result had been obtained Barnum dropped the mantle of charity, which was really the boldest, the most expensive, and the most successful of all advertising schemes.

The up-town movement rendered Castle Garden unsuitable for public entertainments, and as the increasing immigration required extensive accommodations, it was devoted to this purpose. During the quarter century which has since then elapsed four millions have entered America through this grand gateway of life. Castle Garden combines many features of special convenience. As the emigrants land, each, when passing the first desk, gives his name, age and country. The recording clerk speaks seven languages, and certainly has a busy time taking down 5,000 names in one day. The newcomers are then assigned to a certain portion of the area, where they encamp and call for food, and also prepare for their journey to the interior. Bread is furnished at eight cents a loaf and milk at eight cents a quart. Lager is also sold, but nothing stronger. A broker employed for the purpose furnishes American currency in exchange for foreign money, and every other facility is afforded, including a "labor bureau" for obtaining employment. Most of the newcomers, however, are bound for the West, and 6,000 have been dispatched in one day. Emigrant trains generally consist of twenty-one cars, this being the average capacity of a locomotive engine. Notwithstanding the immense number of arrivals there are ten times as many awaiting their opportunity.

It is said that 2,000,000 now in Europe are looking hopefully toward such a movement. The emigration of this season has been marked by an unusual degree of vigor and fine personal appearance, and the advantage thus gained by America is beyond all power of estimate.

Pepper for Moths.

[From the New York Times.]

A word in season, if it is the right word, regarding moths, will be equivalent in utility to the old adage, "A stitch in time saves nine." An obscure student of economic housewifery, who has attentively regarded for a series of years the action of different vegetable substances on the life and destruction of insects, has discovered the proper food for the greedy moth, all mouth. It is cheaper than camphor or tobacco, has no smell and is always available. A pound or two or three of black pepper, ready pulverized for table use, scattered freely among your furs and woolens, can easily be shaken all out in the autumn by some hand, willing and happy to be hired to sneeze, and the garments will be found uninjured. A lady who packed up her personal effects in the loose confusion of too little time and strength to devote thereto, hurried them off to one of our great storehouses, and left them untouched during an absence of three years. She had tossed the pepper with random lavishness through each trunk, box and defenseless bag of bundles. She found her fur-trimmed and all-wool garments perfectly unharmed after their three years of extra exposure among the quantities of other families' goods accumulated in the proper moths' boarding-house. Not only this triumph; another divulged experience brings to light a handsome muff, which, being superseded by other furs to match suits, escaped use for fifteen or twenty years, and was seldom looked at. Well peppered, and without other extra care, it is clean, fresh and undamaged to-day. An economic object attained, better a few cachinatory occasions, and a funny profusion of sorrowless tears, or an hour's humbug cough, in looking over a trunk, if it earns money faster than it can be earned in any other way. In fact, this is the chief way in which pepper should be used, unless one wants to scare the moths out of one's stomach at the cost of wearing out and burning up the delicate tissues of the inner man. Pepper to be trodden under foot in the shoes on a cold journey, or in the case of a constitution where the blood needs to be coaxed down to the feet, is, indeed, useful also; but the evident chief object of nature in providing black pepper is to defend mankind from powerful robbers, of form and color so indefinite that even in the matter of identity they often deceive their most familiar victims.

Another Phenomenal Girl.

[From the New York Times.]

Mlle. Nevada, the young American artist, reported to have just made a successful debut as Amina, at Her Majesty's Theater, London, is well remembered as a child on the Pacific Slope. She was born at a California mining camp, Alpha, now a small village in Nevada county, from which she has taken her stage name, her real name being Emma Wixon. Her father, Dr. Wixon, and his wife, having been reduced in fortune, opened a small inn at Alpha, where a daughter was born to them about 1857. One Fourth of July, when Emma was some four years old, the usual celebration was held there. After the rural brass band had executed in a doubled sense a national air, the child, who, with her father, was standing near the musicians, seemed absorbed in their rude strains, and whispered, "Papa, papa, won't you ask the men to play that again?" They complied, of course, and before their notes had died away in the mountain air, the child began to sing, reproducing faithfully in tra-la-las what she had just heard. The assembled miners were delighted, naturally, and expressed their delight in ringing huzzas. They gave the little warbler the name of Pet, which long adhered to her. Her parents afterward removed to Virginia City, Nev., where her vocal talents were as carefully cultivated as they could be in such a place. Since then she has been studying in Europe at the best schools, and her friends have great hopes of her lyric future. She is said to have shown indomitable perseverance and courage, and to richly deserve any success she may attain.

A Monster Transfer-Boat.

[Baltimore special to Chicago Tribune.]

The great interest that has been manifested here for months past in the construction of the monster transfer-boat for the Baltimore and Ohio Road culminated to-day in the trial-trip. In order to test the boat a run of several miles was made down the river, and fourteen miles were scored against a strong headwind in less than an hour and a half, and the trip in every respect was most satisfactory. The boat goes on regularly on Sunday, when the new fast-time schedule goes into effect. With the unequaled facilities thus gained upwards of a half hour's time is saved over the old transfer through the streets, or the passage through the tunnel in the city, the transfer of entire trains being now made from one side of Baltimore to the other in five minutes. The boat has a tremendous double engine of 1,000 horse-power, is nearly 400 feet long, and takes on fifteen passenger-coaches at one time. The social features of the initial trip were of the pleasantest character, leading Baltimore and Ohio officials and representative newspaper men being present.

PARISIAN BONNETS.

The Latest Sweet Thing in Female Head-Gear.

[Paris Cor. Cincinnati Gazette.]

I have paid a visit to the celebrated establishment of Madames Virot and Geargette. All the bonnets there, as everywhere, are richly and heavily laden with gold, for which those modistes make the ladies settle bills that would warrant it to be all real and unalloyed metal. At Mme. Virot's there was a simple, rough-and-ready hat, trimmed with a single bow of red satin, simply lined with satin of the same color, and the price of that hat was simply—$20! Only that and nothing more. A handsome bonnet was one which, at a certain distance, looked like a golden ball. Its crown was made of transparent filigree work, shaped in either Japanese, Chinese or Egyptian designs. (One must be familiar with so much lore now to be explicit in fashions.) The front part of the little thing was totally covered with an immense bow of light filigree gold. What do you think the strings of that bonnet were? Wide black satin. Another close-fitting bonnet had a crown of white satin, on which was embroidered with gold threads in relief the most beautiful sheaf of wheat, studded with white daisies exquisitely worked with hearts of gold. The trimming was a bunch of gold-colored marabout feathers topped with a white aigrette tipped with gold filigree. A young lady's bonnet was of white silk, embroidered all over with forget-me-nots. The whole front was made of tufts of forget-me-nots, relieved on the left by a long net of pinkish rosebuds. Dead heliotrope color is getting to be fashionable. It is not pretty, nor should I think it would be very becoming. It has only one redeeming point—it is new. I saw several bonnets trimmed with it, one entirely composed of heliotropee flowers. Birds of every hue and kind are still making bonnets and hats the last resting place. The other day walking along the boulevards I saw a funny-looking gray-something on a lady's hat; I drew near to see what it might be; it was a big owl's head with its great glass eyes staring people out of countenance. An odd-looking hat is the one Mademoiselle Pierson wore to go to the salon in "The Nabob." It was an immense black broad-brimmed VanDyke covered with black plumes; that, of course, is no novelty; but along the inside rim, lined with black velvet, was a bird of paradise stretched and lying very flat with its long tail covering the whole left side. Not many straw hats have come out as yet; perhaps they will not be worn as much as those made of glittering combinations. Here are two very pretty ones, however, that I saw at the Compagnie Lyonnaise on the boulevard: A large scoop made of alternate narrow brown and cream-colored straw, trimmed with a paradise bird on the left side. Its long feathery tail was confined in one or two places by a twist made of brown velvet and cream-colored satin. That twist was the only trimming on the right side, being there fastened to the hat by gold-headed pins. The inside was lined with bias bands of brown velvet and cream satin. The other a navy blue straw trimmed with shirred satin, color to match. On the left side was a series of pompons of about six shades of blue. The pompons were made of fringed-out silk. It was a beautiful spring hat for a young lady.

THE MATCH MAN.

Death of Old Mr. Jones, Who Made the First Friction Matches.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

Old Mr. Jones is dead. There were many of his name, but we bear his memory in specially grateful remembrance as he passes away at the age of eighty-nine and is laid to rest at Chillicothe, Ohio. It is to Mr. Jones that we are chiefly indebted for friction matches. As with the steam engine, the telegraph and the electric light, there were others who about the same time were experimenting with combustibles with a view to inventing something to supersede the ancient tinder box and flints. To Wm. Jones is accorded the chief honor. About half a century ago he pasted with starch on the ends of small and rudely-fashioned bits of stick a compound of chlorate of potash and sulphate of antimony. At first his matches were made like a comb, a number of them being on the same piece of wood, so that they could be broken off as wanted. They bore the name of Lucifer—not, as is commonly supposed, in allusion to the Prince of Darkness, who is sometimes called by this name, but by pleasant reference to the Morning Star, or "light-bearer." Half a dozen years after Mr. Jones introduced matches phosphorus was added to the composition, and soon became one of the leading combustibles used. This useful agent had been known for 150 years, but it was expensive to produce and risky to handle. Modern improvements have reduced its cost and vastly increased its production. An immense quantity of phosphorus is every year used in match-making, being over 90 per cent of all that is produced. A pound of the article will make a million matches. Some matches are made without phosphorus, chlorate of potash being substituted for it. So necessary do these useful aids to civilization seem to our very existence that it is hard to contemplate a state of society which prevailed only half a century ago in which the best people had to knock flintstones together when they wanted a light. Mr. Jones must have had great difficulty at first in persuading people that his matches were better than flints. Old gentlemen and others who were set in their ways were opposed to the innovation, and, especially when they heard mention of the name of Lucifer in connection with it, suspected some influence of the evil one. Even if good old Mr. Jones should not have a monument erected to him his memory will be honored in the fact that the fruit of his happy thought has brought comfort to all manner of people, and that his invention, apparently so small and so humble, has taken a conspicuous place in the world's march of progress.

Vanderbilt's New Yacht.

[From the New York Sun.]

William K. Vanderbilt's new steam yacht Mosquito will be launched on Monday morning from Piepergrass' shipward in Greenpoint. The yacht is entirely devoid of beauty, its high smokestack and side-wheels giving it a decidedly awkward appearance. It is 64 feet long over all, 12 feet beam, 4 feet in depth, and has a draught of 22 inches. The engine, built by Clute Brothers of Schenectady, is inclined, with side wheels eight feet in diameter, and is of forty-horse power. It will be capable of a speed of ten knots. The yacht is built of backmatack frames, planked with cypress, and has a measurement of thirty-two tons. The cabin is a cosey little room, finished in white pine and mahogany, with upholstery of dark maroon mummy cloth. There is nothing novel in the construction of this yacht. Mr. Vanderbilt's object was to have a craft suitable for shooting and fishing excursions, and capable of sailing in very shallow water.

THEY do not have a wedding in Rockford, Ill., every day, but when they do they make the most of it. One of the Western papers publishes a bit of special correspondence, apparently written by the bride's next friend, and stating that "at the happy event" she wore black velvet and cream color, and that the "painful sense of overdress sometimes found was entirely lacking in this respect." "A painful sense of overdress" must be truly dreadful.

PRESAGE.

Amidst the vivid greenness of the spring
I marked a leaf of deep, impurpled cast;
Tender, soft-cheeked, already this young thing
Hinted of ripeness and the autumn blast.

The fabled Grææ from their birth were gray;
And out of life's gay multitude there peer
Some fresh and childish faces that to-day
Wear the strange presage of their latest year.

Singular Phenomena Observed on a Window-Glass in Laurel, O.

[Correspondence Cincinnati Gazette.]

The Nicholas Building is a corner building of two stories, and forms an L fronting on the two streets. The upper story has been occupied in whole or in part by families or as workshops in the inverse order as follows: John M. Wilson, present occupant, backing; Chas. Day, John McKinley, E. W. Day's shoe and harness shop, Jas. Wm. Boyce, John Mofford. Jack Boyce, the Grange, etc. On the rear of each L in the upper story there is a window facing respectively southwest and northwest. Last January, 1880, O. W. Davis accidentally discovered a distinct likeness of a little girl's face on one of the panes of the window facing southwest. The attention of several persons was called to it at the time, each of whom saw the face, but for reasons best known to themselves it was not made public until last Monday evening. On Tuesday morning considerable interest seemed to be manifested about the matter, when my attention was first called to it. Armed with John L. Barkley's opera glass I began an investigation of what was to be seen, and, on examination, the likeness of a little girl was distinctly seen on the window pane, or, rather, appeared a little inside the window; so distinct, indeed, that all the party then present, some twenty in number, agreed that it was the likeness of Cora Rogers, a little daughter of Thomas Rogers. This child, about 6 years old, lived with Jas. W. Boyce, who occupied these rooms about a year and a half ago.

On careful inspection another image was discovered on the same pane. The face turned partly toward the observer. And on the other side of the first picture still another, much younger, but plump and smiling, and later in the day still a fourth one; this was of an older person, all on the same pane. None of these last could be identified. Viewed from a particular locality, and under favorable circumstances of illumination, all the first three could be seen at once. The fourth seemed to partly overlap the others, and could not always be seen at the same time with the others.

While looking at this object, one of the company, Mrs. Lu. Carter, discovered what was supposed to be another likeness on one of the panes of the other window (the one facing northwest). Almost all could see it, but by means of the opera glass I found no difficulty in recognizing the faces of two children lying abed, the face of one partly concealed from view by the one in front. Several of the party could recognize this also. Later in the day Dr. O. D. Simmons discovered another face on the same pane, and still later I found the fourth one, all four distinctly seen under favorable circumstances at one view.

At one time in the forenoon the sash was removed to within the darkened room, but by ever so careful management of the light the views were not so satisfactory as in its natural place in the window. Later in the afternoon I could distinctly recognize a likeness on another pane of this last window, and also Walter Simmons discovered a good likeness on still another pane of the same window. With the opera glass I could plainly see this face. It was that of a little girl with a round crowned hat on. This made four panes of window glass having on them these likenesses. They are viewed from the ground, and from many positions and distances. A good deal depends on their illumination and the particular point from which they are viewed. By placing a dark hat behind the picture it is shown in the air.

Nothing can be discovered on or in the pane of window glass when very close to it. The panes were washed and rubbed dry, etc., only to make the images more distinct, doubtless by removing particles of dust, etc.

Later (Wednesday noon). On the pane first described to-day on carefully focusing the opera-glass in steady position and in particular locality, and in good state of personal health and fasting, I was enabled to see it appear literally full of faces, I counted nine of men beside the children first described. They could not all be seen at one view, but all from the same locality. In directing the point of vision to this or that locality I would see the image there; the others would gradually dissolve away. They seemed to overlap each other somewhat, like a lot of coin thrown promiscuously in a heap. It is known that the grange had a meeting in this room on one particular electric night. Now, how came these pictures here? Evidently they were photographed by lightning. The flash of lightning furnished the light to form the image, and this, together with the accompanying electricity, produced chemical or molecular change in the constituents of the glass, and then the images were fixed.

Editor Kinsella's Marriage.

[From the New York Sun, 22d.]

Thomas Kinsella, of Brooklyn, was married on Wednesday afternoon last by the Rev. Dr. Rankin, in Washington, D. C., to Emeline Van Siclen, the divorced wife of School Superintendent Thomas Field, of Brooklyn. The ceremony took place in Dr. Rankin's residence. It is said that Mr. Kinsella was recently divorced from his wife, the divorce being obtained in some other State than New York. Emeline Van Siclen, Mr. Field's divorced wife, has been living with relatives in a retired manner in the northwestern part of Washington. Mr. Kinsella has visited Washington several times during the past winter and spring, remaining three or four days at a time. The relations of Mr. Kinsella and Mrs. Field some years ago made a scandal in Brooklyn, and led to Mr. Field's obtaining an absolute divorce. Mr. Field also sued Mr. Kinsella for damages for criminal conversation, and obtained $16,000 damages, which he turned over to three trustees, directing that it be paid to his divorced wife in small yearly installments.

Emeline Van Siclen was a school teacher in Brooklyn when she married Mr. Field, who was considerably her senior. For a time they lived happily. Then Mr. Kinsella became a frequent visitor to their house, and one day Mr. Field found certain letters in his wife's trunk that led him to order Mr. Kinsella to keep away from his house. After that, it is alleged, Mr. Kinsella frequently took Mrs. Field riding to Coney Island, and on one of these trips Mr. Kinsella discovered them together and a scene ensued. The scandal then became public. Soon after Mr. Field obtained his divorce. After that, is said, Mr. Kinsella resumed his relations with the divorced wife. Mrs. Kinsella, it is said, has for some time past been in ill health, caused by her worry over her husband's conduct.

The marriage notice as printed in the Washington Star, read as follows:

KINSELLA-VAN SICLEN.—On Wednesday, May 19, 1880, by Rev. Dr. Rankin. Hon. Thomas Kinsella, of Brooklyn, N. Y., to Mrs. Emeline Van Siclen, nee Field of this city.

A Clever Kabul General.

[From the London World.]

Here is an extract from a private letter from the Punjab: "There is a very fine fellow here, a sort of State prisoner, Daood Shah, the Kabul General who, they say, tried to stop the massacre of poor Cavagnari. He is 6 feet 4 inches high, and a handsome, Jewish-looking man, like all Afghans. The officer in whose charge he is brings him to the club to read the papers to him sometimes, for he is a most interested student of events, and very eager for telegrams. His comments on European politics are amusing, though it is hard to make him fairly understand Radical and Tory, and Russian Nihilism. Still, he is wonderfully well informed, and a striking contrast for mental activity and general vigor to Indian swells. We want to get him a Kriegspiel, or war game, for he is an enthusiastic soldier, and a great student of battles and plans thereof. We made a mistake in underrating opponents like these. He is out of it now, of course; but he freely criticises Gen. Roberts, and points out his mistakes. It is a pity to keep a mountaineer like him down here in the heat. We all say he should be sent to Simla to teach our Commander-in-Chief the art of war. These Afghans are a queer folk. He is the mildest-mannered man that ever cut a throat, and yet throat-cutting would come as easy to him as saying his prayers. He prays devoutly five times daily."

Fashion's Unusual Liberality.

[From the Parisian.]

Fashion presents really a charming character this year. Are you fond of bright colors? It allows you to wear them as much as you like, plain goods are also conceded to you, it gives us back shawls, it permits every one to do as she or he likes. Pekine-Pompadour materials, with the Louis XV. tunic, is the newest fashion at present. Skirts covered with small flounces are much worn. There is nothing prettier than these small pleatings—which come from the top of the tunic—especially when made of batiste and muslins. We have already said that cashmere shawls are changed into Moscovite pelisses. They have a seam in the back; the two ends form the front of the pelisse; they are made to fit the figure by a few seams, and are trimmed ad libitum with chenille and silk fringe and bands of passementerie. This can all be done without spoiling the shawl in the least. A few seems to be ripped and your shawl reassumes its primitive form.

Popular Indifference for the Queen.

[London Dispatch, May 15.]

The Queen actually remained in London nearly four days, and returned to Windsor yesterday. I saw her drive through Hyde Park, from Buckingham Palace to Paddington Station, through an immense concourse of people and carriages. The Queen was in an open barouche with outriders, John Brown occupying the dickey. The escort were Life Guards. She drove from Hyde Parke corner to Victoria Gate through a double lane of carriages filled with fashionable people, and dense crowds of the lower classes concentrated at different points. Gentlemen raised their hats, ladies bowed, but not a single cheer was given along the whole route. The Queen seemed to be in extremely good health, notwithstanding the protracted fatigues of her stay in London, having been two hours in attendance at her own drawing-rooms.

Mr. Vennor Predicts.

[From the New York World.]

Mr. Henry G. Vennor comes forward again with his direful prophecies of storms, heat, cold, etc. His letter is dated at Montreal, May 18, and in it he says. "I believe that June will be an intensely hot month, on the whole, but the end of the present month, and probably the 'first of June,' will be fall-like, with frosts again. July will be a terrible month for storms, with terms of intense heat, but another fall-like relapse, with frosts, will, in all likelihood, occur a few days before the 20th. I fear the storms of thunder and hail will be of unusual severity during July. I must claim the verification of my prediction relative to 'a cold wave, with frosts, over a large portion of the United States between the 10th and 15th of May.' The relapse toward the close of the present month will be more severe than that just past."

Mr. Blaine's Lost Amulet.

[From the New York Sun.]

Senator Blaine used to wear an amulet which his dying Roman Catholic mother had placed around his neck, and which he half-seriously spoke of as his protection against evil. Four years ago he was sunstruck on the steps of the Capitol. He was carried home unconscious and half undressed. When he came to himself the amulet was gone, and he, in spite of constant efforts, has never been able to recover it.

The whole country for miles around turned out en masse and searched for the little wanderere for two days and nights. On the morning of the third day, the attention of Mr. Miller, a farmer residing near Modena, sixteen miles from the boy's home, was attracted by the barking of a dog in his sheep pasture, and on investigation found the little lost one sound asleep under a bush, with his faithful dog standing sentinel over him. Mr. Miller soon had the satisfaction of restoring the child to its distressed parents.

A DAY or two since two French women were passengers on one of the local trains between Virginia City and Carson. They had with them in a big tin cage a parrot that annoyed every one with its constant squalling and gabble. Observing the unfriendly glances which were being bestowed upon the bird, one of the women pulled down a cloth cover that was on the top of the cage. When the extinguisher was clapped upon the bird and it found itself in the dark, it growled out. "That's d—d smart." The bird kept quiet for a few minutes, then yelled in its shrillest tones, "Look out, Sarah, he's going to kiss you!" The conductor, who happened to be in the car, said: "That parrot must be an old traveler on railroads. He seems to think we are passing through a tunnel."

A Cleveland girl recently prepared her wedding, spread her feast and gathered her friends, but waited in vain for the arrival of the bridegroom. The company separated, and the girl was duly broken-hearted. The groom has not been seen in the region since. He took this method of revenging himself for repeated postponements of the union by the young woman.

POISONED AIR.

A Venomous Fungus in the St. Louis Dust.

A German Chemist's Microscopic Work in Missouri Limestone.

Dr. Eberhard Schultz, of the University of Bonn, Germany, has been in St. Louis for several days visiting old college friends and resting after a tour in the Rocky Mountains. A POST-DISPATCH reporter had the pleasure of an introduction to the learned Doctor on Sunday afternoon, and after a long and interesting chat about the scientific wonders of the Yellowstone country the Doctor began speaking of St. Louis. He talks in the queer unidiomatic way which foreigners, especially Germans, who have learned English from books, affect. The Doctor likes St. Louis very much. He was here, he said, just after the war in 1868, and spent nearly half a year in town, and he was again here last fall before going west. "I make your city headquarters," he went on, "a center of operations. After the chilly winter I have had in the mountains, it is, indeed, very pleasant to come to St. Louis and rewarm."

"Most strangers object to St. Louis on account of the mud and dust, but we don't mind that at all."

"The dust in St. Louis is bad, there is no doubt about that. It is really worse than bad; it is deadly. When I was here fourteen years ago Dr. Haecker and myself made a number of singular experiments with the limestone dust on some of your roads. Dr. Halker had several curious cases of bronchial affections in children which puzzled him to explain, and he and I worked together to ascertain the cause. It took us a long while, because the children were of wealthy parents and not exposed to those things which the poor have to suffer, and the disease too was very singular. It was primarily inflamation of the bronchial passages, with a dry cough which usually culminated in an affection of the lungs."

"Yes," interjected the reporter, "I have known a number of such cases, and recollect that the doctors confessed themselves at sea as to the why and wherefore, as we say in 'Pinafore.'"

"Just at that time some New Orleans physician was investigating the gutters of his city, and had discovered that singular anophytes which has been named

THE YELLOW FEVER FLOWER.

It is a stalk-shaped fungus of singular make, and it is supposed, you know, though really without much proof, that this cryptogam is the active principle of yellow fever. Of course, it is microscopic, and can only be seen with a very high power. Haecker and I began searching for this evil blossom, extending our research into the different parts of the city. It was not long before we found that, not fever flower, but another cryptogam. Wait and I will show it to you." Stepping out into the street in front of the hotel the Doctor scooped a little paper full of dust, examined it for a moment and threw it away. "This will not do to show you what I mean, as this is wholly wood fibre from the Nicholson pavement." The physician and the reporter walked several blocks until they came to a limestone paved street, and here the savant got his dust. "The wood fibre of the Nicholson is almost as bad as this," he said, "but while you can't help it much you can kill the fungi in this."

As soon as his room in the hotel was reached the doctor opened one of his trunks and took out a large binocular microscope, which he limbered up and adjusted on a table by the window. "You notice this dust is very finely powdered," he said, "and is just the kind to be most easily taken up and carried by the air. Now look." The reporter looked, and saw in the midst of the white masses of the dust distinct shapes, which he could not make out. The dust itself looked like a mass of very badly broken macadam. Long pieces of limestone of irregular shapes were heaped up, and running in and out of the pieces were seeming to bind the mass together. The vines seemed to be very much like that of the Virginia creeper, only without leaves. There was a small swell at irregular intervals, and the fungus was internetted in itself in a thousand fibres.

"Now, that long yellow-looking fibre that you see is what makes the St. dust so bad for the bronchial passage. You notice with this higher power what a singular formation it has," and the vine suddenly grew to three times its former size.

"It seems to be secreting some sort of juice," said the reporter, after gazing intensely at the microscopic weed.

"Yes; and that secretion is peculiarly irritating to the mucous membrane, especially of children. You can just charge all the bronchial trouble to which your people are so subject to that little innocent looking lichen. You see it is go generally diffused that some of the anophyte clings to every separate particle of dust that drives through the air. It is taken into the air passages and there sticks long enough to do the mischief, being of course constantly reinforced."

"Have you ever heard of this fungus elsewhere?"

"No, it is peculiar to the St. Louis limestone. It flourishes enormously in the quarries. I have hunted for it in many places, but never have I seen it in any other place."

"And what is the remedy?"

"The only remedy possible is to do away with the dust, and that can be done solely by thoroughly wetting it and keeping it out of the air. As long as all of your best drives are at the mercy of simoons charged with this fungus, so long will you never have healthy children in St. Louis."

A PERSECUTOR'S PUNISHMENT.

William Judge Sent to the Work-house for Six Months.

William Judge, a man who was in the confidence of Michael Madden, and who has since his death persecuted the widow with a rare cruelty, and has several times paid the penalty for his cowardice, was arraigned in the Court of Criminal Correction this morning for a malicious trespass upon her residence several days ago. When he took the stand he disgusted every decent man in the court room by making the most infamous insinuations in regard to her character. This he did with unblushing effrontery. Mrs. Madden burst into tears, and Prosecuting Attorney Hogan could not conceal his wrath, as he told the Judge that he would have the grand jury look into his case. Judge Cady, with great severity, said: "You are not satisfied with injuring this lady's property, but you attempt now to rob her of that which to a woman is dearer than life itself. I sentence you to six months in the Work-house."

An approving murmur went up throughout the court-room.

New Criminal Accusations.

Frank M. Rice this morning swore out a warrant against Alfred Scott, whom he charges with stealing one overcoat, a suit of clothes, three pairs of gloves, three white shirts and a cap, all valued at $25. Rice keeps a store at 103 South Third street.

Mollie Cole is accused by Lillie Levis of stealing a trunk and contents valued at $25. The affair occurred among the frail denizens of South Sixth street.

Charles Kraedler is called upon to answer the accusation of Joseph Heitkamp, who alleges the larceny of $7 worth of chewing tobacco.

Private Watchman P. M. Wagner, of the St. Louis Bridge and Tunnel Company, accuses Charles Golden of stealing two bushels of wheat.

Joseph O'Meara, Richard Tobin and Chas. Meany were parties on the one side, and Thomas Woods on the other, to an election fight at the Fourteenth Ward polls. Woods got the worst of it, and to-day swore out a warrant for assault and battery against the others.

NO ENCOURAGEMENT.

Such is the Decision of the Colored Conference With Regard to the Negro Exodus.

The African M. E. Conference met at 8:30 this morning, Bishop R. H. Cain in the chair. Nearly two hours were spent in hearing the reading of the minutes, which were finally corrected and approved. Another hour was passed in devotional exercises and the transaction of unimportant business. Then it was resolved that the Bishops should reside and have power in districts as at present, and that the Indian Territory only should be visited by the Bishops as missionaries. An attempt to make California a missionary district failed, but notice was given that the subject would again be considered. The motion of Rev. J. B. Stansbury, requiring the annual conferences to appoint all traveling ministers, was carried. Rev. Paul Jefferson desired to leave no minister without an appointment, except in cases for which provision had been made by law.

The reports of the committees on Episcopacy, on Education, on the State of the Church and on the Wesley Monument were read and adopted.

Revs. W. J. Gaines and Wm. D. Johnson related the particulars of their visit to the Conference of the M. E. Church South, on May 22, 1878.

The Committee on Ecumenical Council recommended that an Ecumenical Council be held at Washington on the first Wednesday in June, 1881, for the purpose of organizing, or, if that be impracticable, of establishing terms of fraternal relation between all the colored Methodist churches on the American Contifient, and that the basis of representation be the participation of the bishops, superintendents or presidents of every church, and two delegates from every annual conference only. A resolution was passed striking out the word Ecumenical, and then the report was adopted.

A majority and a minority report were submitted by the Committee on Exodus. The former, which was adopted, declared that it was inexpedient to take any action in the matter, and the latter deemed the encouragement of emigration necessary.

Bishop R. K. Disney, of the British Colored Methodist Church, entertained the Conference with descriptions of religious gatherings in British Guiana, Hayti and other places. At the conclusion of his remarks a resolution providing for the establishing of a closer relation to the British Church was offered by Bishop H. M. Turner, and was passed unanimously.

Dexter; Plunkett, "Stuart Harold," his first appearance here; The Sheriff, Mr. C. M. Collins. A chorus of twenty-four voices. Sig. Carlo Torriani, conductor. Saxton's orchestra.

An Adventure in the Air.

[Paris Special to N. Y. Herald.]

Our French aeronauts, Messrs. Gasta, Pommariol, Gauthier and Ferron, narrowly escaped destruction while making scientific excursions in the clouds this week. They left Angers at 6 o'clock in the evening, duly equipped. They were in high spirits, and for a time all went well. As night came on, and they made preparations to descend, a terrific storm arose. The balloon swept on with relentless force over miles and miles of country, until to their horror, the aeronauts suddenly saw the lights of Nantes in the distance. Beyond lay the immense, somber ocean. They at once saw they must descend at all hazards or perish. Opening the valve, they came down with a tremendous rush, and in one minute they actually struck the earth no less than three times.

Each time the balloon rebounded like an India-rubber ball, to the tremendous height of over two hundred feet. The travelers clung tenaciously to the ropes, uttered not a single word, but grimly prepared for death. At last the silence was broken by M. Gauthier, who exclaimed, "My legs are broken." The balloon swept on, dragging over the ground, which it plowed up wherever it passed. At last the aeronauts were seen by some peasants, who hastened to their assistance and, with great difficulty, extricated them from the wreck. The balloon, thus lightened, rose and once more dashed into the forest of Larode Servieres, where it went to pieces. Mr. Gauthier was no sooner on terra firma than he fainted. All of the four travelers were more or less injured, but they are happily now out of danger.

Land League No. 2.

A large meeting of Land League No. 2 was held last evening at its hall on Eleventh and Franklin avenue, with Mr. P. H. Tansey in the chair and Mr. Finnell acting as secretary. Dr. J. J. Kane, Judge McGowan and others made eloquent appeals in favor of renewed exertions on the part of the members of all leagues, and referred in pathetic terms to the deplorable distress which still exists in Ireland. The former gentlemen read a speech recently delivered by Mr. James Redpath of the New York Tribune, in which that gentleman depicted the harrowing distress which prevails in unfortunate Ireland. A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. James Redpath for the able manner in which he dealt with the Irish question. Mr. John T. Kelly, winner of the suit of clothes given by Mr. McCartin for the late picnic, donated the same to the league for another raffle. On motion the executive committee of the League was ordered to correspond with Mr. Michael Davitt, who has just arrived in New York from Ireland, as to the time he will visit St. Louis, so that proper arrangements, etc., may be made for his reception. Mr. Finnell, Judge McGowan, Mr. James Kennedy and Mr. Wm. J. Hanley were appointed a committee to fix the time of meetings of the several clubs, so as to avoid, if possible, any clashing. After disposing of other routine business tending to promote the welfare of the club, the meeting adjourned to next Sunday, when a large attendance is expected.

AT five o'clock last evening John Green, aged 11, living on Jackson street, Carondelet, attempted to accelerate the kindling of fire by pouring coal oil upon some glowing embers. The can of course exploded and, the boy's clothing taking fire, he was burned in a terrible manner. Doctor Starkloff says he will die.

AT 11 o'clock yesterday the one and a half story frame residence of Henry Thompson, on the Morgan Ford road near Russell avenue, took fire from a defective flue and was with a portion of its contents destroyed by fire. The loss will reach $1,200.

WILLIAM BRIDGES, of Greencastle, Ind., was asked to contribute toward building a Methodist church. He is a Universalist, and he said that he would give $100 on condition that a Universalist clergyman should be allowed to preach three sermons in the new edifice. The offer was accepted and the money paid. The Rev. Mr. Curry preached the first of the Universalist discourses, and improved the opportunity to violently assail orthodox Christianity. The congregation was horrified, and on the following day the officers tried to compromise with Bridges by returning the $100, but he declared that the bargain must be consummated, and the two remaining sermons are to be given.

THE John Means left for New Orleans yesterday with four barges loaded with bulk wheat.

THE Golden Eagle, Capt. Asbury, leaves for Keokuk to-day; the War Eagle, at 4 p. m. tomorrow, for Keokuk.

JO. Whitehill, the popular coal and ice dealer of Arkansas City, Ark., is stopping at Barnum's with his family.

THE Bald Eagle brought from Upper Mississippi four barges containing 2,000 tons of ice for the Mound City Ice Company.

TWENTY-ONE barges are being built for the St. Louis and New Orleans Transportation Company. Some of these will carry 60,000 bushels.

THE Robin left for Metropolis, Ill., for lumber. The Polar Star is nearly due from the Obion River with 800,000 feet of lumber in three barges.

HARDY WILSON was very busy painting steamboat chimneys last week. The Ste. Genevieve and Grand Tower show good results from his magic brush.

THE elegant Belle La Crosse, Capt. Best, had one of the best trips of the season to St. Paul and return. She will leave again for St. Paul to-morrow afternoon, filled with passengers.

TO Cairo 10 feet water. Etna's tow aground in the Lower Ohio. Less than 4 feet feet water on Portland bar. Navigation played out at Pittsburg. Good water in the rivers above St. Louis.

BULK grain shipments last week: Wheat, 56,035 bushels; corn, 87,512; oats, 7,122. In elevators Saturday morning: Wheat, 199,556; corn, 252,492; oats, 51,316; rye, 13,953; barley, 17,806.

JOHN YOUNG, of Mason City, W. Va., has contracted to build two more barges for the St. Louis and New Orleans Transportation Company, to be built immediately after the completion of the one now in hand and nearly completed.

MEMPHIS Appeal: It was the talk on the levee late yesterday afternoon that, on her return from White River, the Josie Harry would take a day in the Memphis and St Louis Anchor Line, leaving Saturday evening next, and relieving the Belle Memphis for a season.

THE propeller Frolic was out yesterday to John Recore's, sixteen miles up the river. Arrived back at St. Louis at 8 p. m. She was full of passengers up and down. Com. Phil. Rohan had the elegant yacht in charge, and enjoyed himself as much as his passengers. The Commodore caught a turtle with his rod and line.

NEW ORLEANS Times: The Grand Lake No. 2 left yesterday afternoon for St. Louis with four barges in tow, containing as freight 1,977 boxes of tin, 171 packages of earthenware, 36 casks soda ash, 117 casks bleaching powder, 54 barrels of carbonate potash, 3 casks mortars and pestles, 53 bars and 89 bundles steel, and 358 anvils.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The Secretary of the Treasury authorizes local inspectors of steam vessels to examine with colored signal lights all pilots applying for renewal of license, and reported by the examining surgeon as only incompletely color-blind, and if the inspectors are satisfied that pilots can sufficiently distinguish the colored lights used on steam vessels, it will be within their discretion to renew the license.

MEMPHIS Avalanche: The channel down at Hardin's Point, about sixty miles below here, has changed since the last high water, and boats should go down what is called the old way, where the Chouteau sounded and found three fathoms, while there is but about seven feet in the channel lately used by boats. In the Fox Island crossing there are three large snags showing above water, and boats passing there at night should keep a lookout.

Sinking of the Henry C. Yaeger.

This steamer left St. Louis last Thursday with a full load of about 1,800 tons for New Orleans and way points. She met disaster at Bailey's Landing, 100 miles below this port, sinking and lying in an unfortunate shape, as a telegram received this morning says—12 feet forward, 9 feet amidship, 20 feet aft and settling fast. She is near or at the Illinois shore, at foot of the bar at the Big Eddy. The Mollie Moore left yesterday for the scene of the disaster with her owner, Capt. Wm. J. Kountz, on board. It is imagined that she cannot be raised, although this is not yet determined, nor whether Dugan and the pumping boat Eckert will be ordered to her assistance. The cargo, including 2,000 bales of hay, is insured, but the steamer is not. The Yaeger was built at Pittsburg in 1870, and has capacity for 1,800 tons. She is a sternwheeler, 234 feet long, 50 feet wide, 8 feet deep; 4 boilers, 24 feet long, 36 inches in diameter; 4 cylinders, 6 feet stroke, 33 and 36 inches in diameter. She cost $60,000, and recently received Inspector's certificate showing that she was in good condition for navigating the Mississippi.

Thirty Hours in the Water.

[From the London Standard, May 10.]

Miss Beckwith on Saturday night, at 10 o'clock, in the presence of a numerous company of spectators, successfully terminated her 30 hours' continuous swim in the whale tank of the Royal Aquarium at Westminster. By so doing she has eclipsed all her previous achievements in the water, and proved herself to possess powers of endurance which, despite what has been accomplished by Capt. Webb, would still be considered remarkable in a man, and most remarkable, indeed, in the case of a slight, graceful girl, not yet out of her teens. According to the conditions of her self-imposed task, Miss Beckwith was allowed to leave the water for half an hour in the 30 hours if she so required, but from the time she dived into the tank, at 4 o'clock on Friday afternoon, up to the time she left her place of immersion, at 10 o'clock on Saturday night, she never claimed that indulgence. Unlike Captain Webb, who, during the progress of his 60 hours' swim at the Aquarium, adopted generally a slow stroke, and frequently floated in a recumbent position, Miss Beckwith used a quicker method of progression, and varied the monotony of her proceedings by several displays of clever evolutions. It was as refreshing as it was interesting to witness this graceful young "Naiad," clothed in her costume du bain of black silk, trimmed with crimson, disporting herself in her aqueous abode; when swimming, striking swiftly round the tank, at some times waltzing on the water, and at others propelling herself, feet first, on its surface. During the whole time she staid there she enjoyed excellent health and spirits. The artificial sea-water was kept generally at a temperature of 80°, its depth being six feet. Her diet was of the lightest kind, consisting principally of minced steak, filletted soles, jellies, beef tea, eggs and coffee. When she left the water, at 10 o'clock, having been immersed for 30 consecutive hours, she was enthusiastically cheered, being then as fresh and well as when she entered it the day before.

A Pompeiian Discovery.

[From the New York Tribune.]

An exquisite bronze faun was lately discovered in a newly-excavated house in Pompeii. The statuette was the ornament of a fountain, and in execution, dimensions and type, forms one of the group of the celebrated Narcissus, Dancing-Faun and Silenus. On entering the first room of the bronzes in the Naples Museum, the eye is at once attracted by the bold, free and graceful attitude of this figure, the muscular yet elegant proportions of which an unusually thick earthy incrustation, chemically united with the oxide, in vain tries to hide. The Faun leans far back; the weight of the body rests on the right leg, the left being extended forward to preserve the balance. The wine skin is squeezed under and held by the left arm, the hand of which grasps the spigot. The right arm and hand are lowered and slightly drawn back, in the attitude of one holding a cup to receive the stream of wine. A tube at the back of the figure led the water into the wine-skin from whence it issued from the spigot. The shape of the head is beautiful; the locks of hair falling over the brow are admirably indicated; a wreath (probably a vine branch with grapes) crowns the head, but is made indistinct by the incrustations. The ears are pointed, and there is the usual tail. The face and figure express the joyous abandonment of a youthful votary of Bacchus.

GOSSIP ABOUT WOMEN.

The "Society for Promoting Female Welfare" is a London charity.

As soon as it becomes too warm for a young lady to wear a cloth hat, she begins to think of wearing flannel dresses.

A Spanish lace veil fastened by two large gold pins, in the four-leaved clover pattern, was the very effective substitute for a bonnet worn at a theater in Boston the other night.

A Boston mother makes her daughter walk the room half an hour daily carrying a jar of water on her head, so as to give her as erect and graceful carriage as Eastern women have.

Some ladies in Charleston, S. C., still wear mourning for the Lost Cause. They drive out in close carriages, and seldom walk the streets for fear of meeting "those horrid Yankees."

A woman who has been seventeen years a clerk in the Treasury Department writes to a Cincinnati paper that the women clerks in Washington regularly do men's work for half of men's pay.

The widow of the Count de Noe (Cham, the celebrated caricaturist), who has been in a desponding state ever since her husband's death, has thrown herself from a window and lies in a precarious condition.

A Boston young lady who has trained her Scotch terrier to come into the parlor at 10 o'clock on Sunday evenings and bark at her gentlemen friends, has been reported to the police for keeping an unlicensed dog, and the dog-catcher is looking for the animal.

Among the late arrivals at the Bridgeport, Conn., cutlery shops are three Swedish women, who work in the blacksmith shop. They wear short dresses, stout boots, and do the regular blacksmith work, having been trained to that occupation in their native country.

Embroidered camel's hair scarfs in pale colors, worked with wreaths of shaded rosebuds and hawthorne flowers in pink or blue, are imported for light summer wear. A lighter pattern is wrought on the turned upper edge of the scarf, and it is finished with light wool fringe.

The mother of Jenny Wade, who was killed in her house by a stray bullet at the battle of Gettysburg, while baking bread for Union soldiers, has been refused a pension, the Senate Committee on Pensions deciding that Miss Wade was making bread of her own free will, and probably for gain.

The most ungainly woman in the United States is said to be the richest one—worth $25,000,000. Her age is past taking into the census; her name is Green; and her residence (now) at Bellows Falls, Va. Her fortune came from blubber; and, lest all small girls should fancy to make a fortune that way, it must be remarked that this particular blubber was tried out on board whale ships, and was afterward tried over in several courts.

A New York paper tells of a man who "stole $40,000 in sixteen years." Probably the man was sick thirteen years out of the sixteen, or he would have made the sum larger and more respectable. Forty thousand dollars in sixteen years is very slow work—for a New York embezzler.

PICKWICK THEATER—Bells of Corneville.
THEATRE COMIQUE—Variety Performance.

THE Republican lost its steering apparatus, rigging and smoke-stack last Saturday, but the hawse-hole is still in excellent condition.

MR. JOHN J. HOLLIDAY, of the Eighteenth Ward, who was mustered unwillingly in the Tilden crowd on Saturday, writes us a card denying the damaging indictment.

MISSOURI is not for Tilden—no matter what may be said to the contrary—and the Moberly convention will not commit the supreme folly of trying to furnish wind for his fast settling kite.

JOE GOSS and Paddy Ryan, the prize-fighters, met this morning near Fort Hamilton, and fought a lively battle. Mr. Goss is said to be in a condition to appreciate the feelings of the conductors of the St. Louis Republican.

EVERY ward except one in the Second Congressional District—which means two-thirds of the City of St. Louis—was carried on Saturday last by the anti-Tilden candidates. The one exceptional ward was stormed and carried and stifled by the Knapps and their hired roughs. This tells the story of Tilden's popularity in St. Louis.

THE thing which is said to popularize Grant with "the gang" is that, while he is not dishonest himself, he is afflicted with a constitutional inability to distinguish a thief from an honest man. He always gets indignant, too, when anybody attempts to point out the difference, and this has a tendency to endear him to the people who can't interpret the revenue laws.

THE claim that the majority of the counties in Missouri have instructed their delegates to the Moberly convention to support Tilden's claim to a renomination is utterly false. Not more than twenty counties are reported as even sending delegations favorble to him, and there are one hundred and fourteen counties in Missouri. There has been an unusual amount of lying about this business. The Moberly Convention wil not instruct for Mr. Tilden, and don't forget it.

A DISPATCH from Washington says that the anti-Tilden Congressmen from the Western and Southern States are moving at last to head off Tilden's scheme to have himself nominated at Cincinnati. The trouble has been all the while that the overwhelming opposition to Tilden has been split up among a half dozen candidates, while the Sage was able to concentrate his support and work with an intelligent purpose. It is time that the opposition picked out a leader.

MOVED by the success of the Logan bulldozers in Illinois, and the almost certain nomination of Grant at Chicago, the New York Herald is now publishing sketches of "the Next President," and making comparisons between Grant and Washington. It has forgotten all about Cæsarism and the dangers of the third term, and assumes that the American people recognize in Grant the only man fit to occupy the Executive chair for the next four years. It beslavers the Hero with as much praise and flattery as though it had been for eight years an equal partner in all the thieving political rings in Washington. The utter worthlessness of the Herald as an exponent of principle and sound policy was never more manifest. The degradation of this great newspaper property in the hands of the polo-playing dissipated young Bennett is simply painful to contemplate.

IN this city on Saturday last primaries were held in every ward for the selection of delegates to the State Convention to be held at Moberly on Wednesday. As everybody knows, a determined effort was made by the Tilden crowd to secure a delegation favorable to the Gramercy Park Claimant. This element was led by the astute political engineers of the Republican. There was an abundance of beer and money and the combination engaged the services of such political adepts and ward statesmen as Tom Kelly, Esq., Billy Carroll and the distinguished Gen. Billy Ryder. All that bummerism could do to capture polls and overawe meetings was resorted to, and yet no political crowd ever went out after wool under such encouraging circumstances and came home so thoroughly shorn. Out of seventy-eight delegates from the city to Moberly, not more than eight of them are for Tilden or in sympathy with the attempt of the Republican to tie the Democracy of Missouri to the coat-tail of that exhausted statesman. This, then, is the extent of the influence of the Republican crowd operating in pleasant weather and under poetic surroundings. The weary brethren in the Chestnut street temple of Lost Arts should sit down by the waters of Babylon, hang their harps upon the pendulous willows, and weep when they remember the glories of 1840.

GRANT is to pay a visit to Kansas City on the 2d of July. Extensive preparations are being made for his reception and entertainment. The time has passed when Grant could be used, irrespective of party, to draw crowds to town. He is a partisan and an avowed Republican candidate for President and it is to be hoped that no Democrat in Kansas City will be found doing him homage. Let the men who propose to support him for President roll in the dust of his chariot wheels.

THE weathercock on the New York Herald building points toward the nomination of Grant, and the Hero is no longer spoken of in vague and unsatisfactory terms. Instead of "the ex-President" we find the name of Grant in the editorial columns coupled with able arguments going to show why he is the only man in the country qualified to fill the Presidential chair. The scare about Cæsarism seems to have subsided.

GEN. JOHN MCDONALD is in the city. The certain nomination of Grant justifies him in overhauling his pigeonholes and furbishing up the documents which are to connect the head of the White House with the great whisky ring of 1870-75.

ALL the young Mary Andersons in St. Louis have been encouraged by the amateur performance at Pope's last week, and there is scarcely a family in our midst that doesn't expect to be in receipt of $50,000 a year by next Christmas.

CINCINNATI cleared $14,000 by her late musical festival. If she would only sell her Southern Railway and go regularly into the show business she might expect to regain her positions among the progressive cities of the land.

A CABLE dispatch confirms the marriage of George Eliot, the writer, to Mr. John Walter Cross. The American people unite in wishing these gifted people well.

SOCIETY OF CIVIL ENGINEERS.

Twelfth Annual Convention to be Held Here To-morrow—Programme and Arrangements.

The twelfth annual convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers will convene in this city to-morrow, Tuesday, the 25th inst. This society includes most of the distinguished members of the engineering profession of the country, and a high standard of qualifications is required for membership. Its monthly publications form an exhibit of the best though in this branch of science, and the society has greatly aided and assisted in developing and rasing engineering skill to its present high standard. The president of the Society is Mr. Albert Fink, of New York, the inventor of the Fink truss, and a civil engineer of great distinction. He is now Pool Commissioner. Mr. John Bogart, of New York, is secretary of the society. The Convention, which begins to-morrow, will last four days' terminating on Friday. About two hundred members are expected to arrive from all parts of the United States. A party of about 150 will arrive by the Wabash Line this evening. The headquarters of the Convention are at Parlor 22, Lindell Hotel, where the arrivals will be registered.

CAPTAIN JAMES B. EADS

will reach here to-morrow from Washington, and in accordance with a usage by which one of the local members is called to preside at the meetings of the covention it is expected he will be elected permanent chairman. The sessions of the convention are to be held in the hall of the Washington University, Washington avenue and Seventeenth street. The opening exercises commence to-morrow morning at 9:30 a. m., when papers will be read and a discussion will follow until 12:30, when an adjournment will be taken. At 1:30 p. m. an excursion train, furnished by the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Railroad, will convey the delegation to the St. Charles bridge. After inspecting this magnificent structure the party will embark on the steamer T. J. Eckert, and proceed down the Missouri and Mississippi rivers to the Water-works, where a brief stay will be made, returning home to the foot of Washington avenue about 7 p. m. At 8 p. m. an evening session will be held at Washington University. On Wednesday the morning session begins at 9 o'clock. In the afternoon the party will embark on the steamer Elon G. Smith and proceed to Carondelet to inspect the various works at that point. Thence dividing one party will go by special train on the Missouri Pacific to Cheltenham via Kirkwood, returning to the Union Depot. The other division will cross the river at Carondelet, inspect the Meier Iron Works and proceed by the East St Louis and Carondelet Railroad on a special train furnished by the St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute Railroad to the

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS,

East St. Louis, returning over the bridge to the Union Depot. An evening session will follow at 8 p. m.

On Thursday morning at 7:30 a. m. all the members of the convention will be conveyed by a special train, furnished by the Iron Mountain Railroad, to Iron Mountain, Pilot Knob, Arcadia, where dinner will be served, thence to Crystal City, where an inspection of the glass works will be made, and returning to the Union Depot at 8 p. m. It is expected that the St. Louis Club will extend their hospitalities to such members who desire to attend their lawn party that evening.

On Friday there will be the usual morning session, and for the afternoon the programme is "go-as-you-please," carriages being furnished the members to visit places of interest in the city and suburbs. A grand banquet to the members in the evening will wind up the convention. The railroad companies, Bridge and Transit Company and the Transfer Company have extended every facility to the visiting members. Mr. C. Shaler Smith, of the Baltimore Bridge Company, is Chairman of the Local Committee, Mr. L. N. Johnson, of the Cairo and St. Louis Line, Chairman of the Committee on Transportation, and Mr. Ed. B. Meyer, Chairman of Committee on Programme. A meeting of the Local Committee to perfect arrangements was held at 4 p. m. this afternoon at Sixth and Walnut. Special committees are appointed for each day. The delegates will all wear badges. No election of officers for the society takes place at this convention, as that occurs at another time.

NORTH ST. LOUIS LOCALS.

The employes of the Laclede Iron Works received their cash to-day. The pay-roll is over $10,000 every two weeks.

Arrangements are being made to light the Sixteenth, Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Wards with gasoline lamps.

Extensive improvements are to be made in St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The front is to be torn down and extended out 20 feet.

In the past seven days over 2,000 loaded freight cars have arrived and departed from the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific North St. Louis depots.

At 7:30 o'clock last night a fire destroyed the frame shed of Fred Westerbeck, 2007 Montgomery street. Ten dollars loss. Insured in the American Central. Cause of fire not known.

After the close of the lecture at the Trinity M. E. Church last evening Rev. George W. Hughey, the pastor, was presented with a beautifully engraved gold-mounted cane by the young gentlemen of the congregation. The presentation was quite a surprise to the popular clergyman, but he managed to feelingly respond.

Yesterday evening a barouche and span of horses driven by Mr. Schnaider, of Schnaider's Garden, was wrecked at Tenth and Destrehan streets. A coupling-pin of the carriage broke, and the horses started on a wild tear down Tenth street, upsetting the barouche at Destrehan street, pitching the two ladies and gentlemen on the street. All were more or less bruised, but none seriously injured. The damage to the barouche was about $50.

THIS evening Deputy Constable Henning will sell at Justice Smyth's court 4,000 feet of lumber for the Eau Claire Lumber Company, to satisfy a claim against H. F. Ferrier, a bill poster; also, two and one-half shares of the Northwestern Savings Bank to liquidate G. Reiner's debt of $162 to H. H. Kessing.

DENTON'S DEAL.

It Panned Out the Wrong Way and He Kicked.

A Bucket-Shop Attachment Suit in Court.

The plea in abatement of the attachment case of Richard F. Denton against Fred Von Phul, Frank Curtis, Quin Price and Augustus Wheeler came up for trial to-day before a jury in Judge Adams' room of the Circuit Court. About the first of last February, Denton, who made a reputation some time ago as the manager of St. George's Hall, went down and speculated in the exchange or bucket shop owned by the defendants and lost $750. He claimed that he had been foully dealt with, and soon afterward got out an attachment against the defendants. In the affidavit Denton made on the occasion of his getting out the attachment he declared that the defendants had feloniously that they were about to dispose of their property, that they were about to leave the city and change their domicile, and that defendant Curtis was a non-resident of this State. It will be remembered that Denton has since been arrested for perjury for making this allegation about Curtis. The defendants filed a plea in abatement in answer to the affidavit of Denton, and the trial to-day was on the sufficiency of the grounds of attachment. All the allegations of Denton were denied by the defendants. Mr. Leander J. Smith appeared for Denton, and Messrs. Harris & Joy for the defendants. When Mr. Smith made this statement of the case to the jury he said had been roped into the bucket-shop by Von Phul, where he was persuaded to invest his money, and where he lost it just as a man loses in a gambling den. The first witness put on the stand was Denton, who said he went down to Von Phul's place and put his money up on wheat. He lost and Von Phul and Curtis said he was "frozen out." He contended that it was not so and then the dispute arose. They refused to settle and then an arbitration arose. Von Phul refused to have anything to do with it—that he had his, Denton's, money and that he intended to keep it. Most of the money went into the hands of Curtis, who threw up his hands and said he did not have it. He went and told Von Phul he would have to sue for the money and Von Phul said it was no use, as they had sold out and that he would be in Chicago the next day.

GOTTEN POSSESSION OF HIS MONEY,

THE INNOCENT DENTON

On cross-examination Denton admitted that he had seen Curtis frequently about the bucket-shop for some time before the trouble. He had bet wheat would go down, and it did go down, and he made some money by it, but Von Phul and the others "shut down the scissors" on him, and he lost all be had put in.

The plaintiff's brother was put on the stand, but testified to nothing new. A number of had been summoned by the plaintiff, among them Miss May Tuttle and Miss Emma Allen, two very fascinating members of the demimonde. They were not put on the stand, however, and just what part they were to play in the suit does not appear. At 2 o'clock Mr. Smith rested his case, and the Judge, without wasting much time about it, decided that a case had not been made out and threw the proceedings out of court. Thus the whole proceeding came to an end. The defendants say if they had been given an opportunity to present their side of the case they would have shown conclusively that Denton's affidavit was a baseless fabrication.

MR. J. H. CHAMBERS

And the Trial of His $50,000 Damage Suit.

The trial of the damage suit of J. H. Chambers against C. M. Swope and Joseph B. Holland was commenced at noon to-day in Judge Lindley's room. Mr. Chambers is a book publisher and agent and is well known throughout Missouri and Illinois. He was formerly agent for the American Encyclopedia published by D. Appleton & Co., of New York, but ceased his connection with the house some years ago. In 1878

THERE APPEARED A CIRCULAR

among the subscribers to the various works sold by Mr. Chambers signed by one C. M Swope, who had formerly been in the employ of Mr. Chambers. It went on to state that the signer had connected himself with Jos. B. Holland, who had taken the place of Chambers as agent in Northwestern States for the "American Encyclopedia," and then touched up the character of Chambers in an exceedingly offensive manner. It charged him with about all the crimes known to the civil or criminal code. Mr. Chambers was deeply offended and brought a suit against Holland and Swope for $50,000 damages. Swope put in a general denial to the allegations and plaintiff's petition, and Holland set up that the circular was sent out as a business precaution.

Col. Slayback appeared to-day for Chambers and S. M. Smith for the defendant Holland. In his to the jury, Col. Slayback was particularly severe on the conduct of Holland and Swope, whom he characterized as worse than murderers and assassins. As the defendants will not try to prove the charges against Chambers to be true, it is expected that the trial will completely vindicate him.

State Military Convention.

In response to a circular issued by Gen. Squires calling the officers of the different companies of National Guard in this State together for the purpose of holding a convention to further the interests of the military in Missouri, a large number of gentlemen representing all the compaines in the State met at the Armory of the First Regiment in this city at noon to-day.

The convention was organized with Gen. Squires as temparary chairman, and Capt. R. L. Brockenbrough as temporary secretary.

On motion it was decided to organize an association to be known as the National Guard Association of Missouri.

A committee of five was appointed by the chairman to draw up a constitution and by-laws for the government of the association, and to present the same at the convention at the earliest opportunity.

The meeting adjourned to meet at 8 o'clock this evening, when permanent officers will be elected and the constitution and by-laws adopted.

St. Louis Entries for the Milwaukee Races.

A number of St. Louis horses have been nominated for the races at Milwaukee next June. In the entries for the Plankinkon House Stakes (open to all horses that have never trotted better than 2:27), $100 entrance, $50 forfeit, $500 added, appear the names of R. C. Pate's blk. g. Green Charlie, whose record is 2:30, and G. Wilson's b. g. Dread, whose record is 2:27.

In the 2:23 class race, with similar stakes, R. C. Pate's ch. m. Kate Middleton is entered, in the 2:30 class. G. Wilson's br. s. France Alexander and J. D. Lucas's b. m. Centella; in the free for all, St. John, Hopetul, Darby and Proteine barred, G. Wilson's ch. g. Mazo-Maine (2:20¼), J. D. Lucas' br. g. Doty (2:21), and R. C. Pate's b. m. Lucille (2:21).

East St. Louis.

Several arrests for violation of city ordinances were made yesterday, but the cases will not come up till the middle of the week.

A. Schnable was locked up for shooting inside the limits, but was bailed out by his friends. He will have a hearing to-morrow or the day after.

A meeting of the Council is set for late this afternoon. No subject of special interest will come up for action except the opening of the library.

G. Ford and W. Young, colored, Mollie Wallace and Annie Gray, white, came to East St. Louis yesterday from St. Louis to enjoy themselves. Two Deputy-Marshals had the crowd behind the bars soon after their arrival on charges of disturbing the peace, and this morning 'Squire Graney assessed them $3 and costs each.

A Big Judgement.

In the United States District Court to-day Judge Treat rendered judgment in the suit of the United States vs. Horatio Page against the defendant for $34,573 80 and costs. This case has been pending for a long time. It was one of the cotton engine cases and the judgment is for the value of cotton unaccounted for to the Government. The result is quite a triumph for District Attorney Bliss, whose conduct of the suit has been marked with much skill.

Second District Police Court.

Thirty-five cases, eight of which were continued, were called in this court to-day. For disturbing the peace Judge Dennison assessed the following fines: Annie Murphey, Henry Johnson, Chas. Leider, Chas. Jones, Sarah Flaherty, Richard Smith, Bridget Timlin, Nick Mullen, John McCullough and Mike McDerby, $5 each; Henry Whitgerder, Sam. Delany, William Shelly and Fred Doepke, costs; Bridget Hanker, John B. Higgins and John Christman $10 each; Mike Conway was fined $10 for trespassing. The usual fines for drunk on the streets were imposed in a number of cases.

A CELEBRATED CASE.

Rudolph Dreyer, the Defaulting Cashier of the Farmers' and Traders' Bank, on Trial.

The Criminal Court will for the next three days be engaged in the trial of Rudolph Dreyer, charged with the embezzlement of $64,000, funds of the Farmers' and Drovers' Bank, now extinct. Charles P. Johnson and John G. Chandler appear for the defense, and J. C. Normile, Eber C. Peacock and Otto Wiedner are for the State. The jury selected is as follows: August Kamp, George L. Keinschmidt, Swan Asp, John Roltes, Fred Rascher, Albert Weisert, Henry Lacke, Julius Faike, Frank P. Mastin, Rudolph F. Carmien, Henry Fetkamerer and Levi Meyer.

A history of the case as gleaned from the indictment will be of interest. Rudolph H. Breyer was in 1874 made cashier of the Farmers' and Traders' Savings Bank, at the corner of Twenty-eighth and Market streets, of which Chas. L. Croft was president and Henry Blanke and Thos. R. Garard were among the directors. He was in sole charge of their business, and was implicitly trusted. It is alleged that by putting in bogus notes and drafts, which he represented as assets, and the utterance of bogus notes for discount, which he hypothecated at the Mechanics' Bank, he covered for a time the deliberate embezzlement of $64,000. The maturing of the Shryock and Rowland note for $10,000, and the discovery that there were no funds with which to pay it, forced exposure and brought about an investigation of the books. Dreyer made a confession of his crime to Mr. Croft and to Henry and Dudley Blanke. On his representation that he would be able to make good the deficiency he was permitted to go at large, but he failed to do so. In May, 1876, he was indicted by the grand jury, Dudley Blanke being a member of it. He immediately fled and for eight months evaded arrest. A reward of $500 was offered for his capture and photographs of him were sent all over the country. Justice finally overtook him in a small town in the interior of Texas. The case was brought to trial in 1878, and the testimony for the State was all in, when a juror was taken sick and the case missed trial. It will be definitely disposed of this time. The witnesses in the case are all well known business men.

City Hall Notes.

The city collections to-day were: Personal and back taxes, $432 44; from other sources $344 52.

This morning Park Commissioner Weigel granted permits to the Chouteau School, the Toxarch Archery Club and the North Presbyterian Church to picnic in Forest Park on the 27th, the 29th and June 5 respectively.

The Commissioner of Public Buildings has completed the plans for the remodeling of the Court-house according to the suggestions in the Mayor's recent message. The plan is to fill out the vacant places in the Court-house square so that suitable offices can be provided for the officials whose offices are now in the City Hall, which is in such a condition that it is deemed unsafe. The additions are to be connected with the main part of the building by corridors Last Friday the House of Delegates passed a bill for the appropriation of $35,000 to meet the expenses of making this alteration, and to-morrow evening the bill will be taken up for consideration by the Council.

The Superintendent of the Work-house yesterday recommended to the Mayor the remission of fines and the discharge from the Work-house of 46 male and 35 female inmates. The total amount of their fines at the date of their commitment was $3,790, a good portion of which has been worked out. The object in taking this action is to confine the expenditures for the fiscal year within the limit fixed by the appropriation. The number at present in durance vile is 293, of which 197 are males and 76 females.

D. Crawford & Co.

An immense throng of purchasers was attracted to D. Crawford & Co.'s spacious and elegant store this morning by the special sale of dress goods and silks announced through the daily papers. A POST-DISPATCH representative found it a most difficult task to elbow his way through the great crowd of ladies anxious to avail themselves of the astonishing bargains offered by them this week. Crawford & Co. can justly lay claim to being one of the most enterprising and reliable retail dry goods houses in this city, and the purchaser who receives a superior quality of goods at a price unequaled by any other firm knows that it is owing to the foresight of the gentlemen, whose buyers in the East are ever on the alert for sales there that will enable them to dispose of goods at a figure astonishing to their competitors in trade in St. Louis. Their monthly illustrated catalogue, sent post free on application to any address, is a gem well worth the close perusal of the ladies.

New Buildings.

Bernard Meyer is building a $2,000 dwelling house on Twelfth between Eemmet and Lafayette streets.

Mr. Goddard was granted a permit to build a stable on Lucas avenue near Garrison avenue, at a cost of $130.

Gerhard Wiggers is building a store and dwelling on the northwest corner of Rosatti and Emmet street, to cost $2,000.

N. T. Fabricus was issued a permit to-day to build a brick addition at a cost of $200, to dwelling on south side of Lami street near Cecilia.

Mr. John P. Mullally was issued a permit this afternoon to build a livery stable at an estimated cost of $900 on the south side of Cass avenue between Glasgow and Garrison avenues.

As Cool as Sandals.

With the advent of the warm weather it becomes necessary to lay aside the heavy footwear of the winter and adopt something lighter. At no place in St. Louis can a purchaser's desires be more fully gratified in buying summer foot-wear than at Torlina's, No. 520 Franklin avenue, where a most varied exhibition of an excellent quality of boots and shoes is made. Here every description of ladies', misses' and children's wear can be had at exceedingly low prices. The object of the firm has been to attract an immense trade, of which they are well worthy, by reason of the excellent quality of goods offered at prices to suit all.

Circuit Court Notes.

The trial of the suit of Mrs. Finnesty against the city was commenced in Judge Thayer's room this afternoon. She sues for $10,000 damages on account of sickness she alleges she contracted by being too close to a bone factory, and which she avers the city ought to have abated.

There were only fourteen divorce cases on the docket for trial in Judge Boyle's room of the Circuit Court to-day, and the amount of matrimonial dirty linen that went through a legal washing was exceedingly discouraging to young candidates for the hymeneal halter.

ABOUT TOWN.

THE grand jury will not be in session until next Thursday.

M. C. THOMPSON, of Kane Hill, Ill., sent a pelican to the Fair Association to-day.

JOE DUNPHY, an employe of Sam Ecker's restaurant, had two fingers badly mashed at 5 o'clock this morning while pounding a steak. His injuries were dressed at the Dispensary.

HENRY MEEKER pleaded guilty to stealing a twenty-five-cent cap from Jeff. Wahl, and was sent to jail for three days, in the Court of Criminal Correction. All other cases were continued.

MR. JOSEPH G. LODGE returned from Joplin this morning, where he was on Saturday to defend "General" Morton, the forger with thirteen aliases. The ease was continued until June 1 by consent.

COMPLAINTS have been made to the police from the Waterworks officials in regard to full grown men bathing in the river in view of the lady visitors at the works. The police are paying particular attention to the matter, and no less than twelve arrests have been made in the last week on this charge.

Anthracite Coal.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—The anthracite interests will suspend the mining of coal the last three days of each week of June.

QUICK, BUT BLOODY.

The Prize Fight Between Joe Goss and Ryan.

The Troy Champion Disables His Antagonist at the End of Eleven Rounds.

Ryan Whips Goss.

NEW YORK, May 24.—Paddy Ryan and Joe Goss met this morning at Fort Hamilton, near the city, and fought eleven rounds, when Ryan was declared the victor. Another dispatch says Goss was well whipped.

A CONTRADICTORY RUMOR.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 24.—There is a rumor that the prize fight between Goss and Ryan did not take place. Goss is reported still in training at Fort Hamilton.

LATER—NO FIGHT AT ALL.

NEW YORK, May 24.—A reporter sent to Fort Hamilton to gather particulars of the prize fight between Ryan and Goss immediately upon the news being received that the men had met telegraphs as follows: The statement that Ryan and Goss met this morning and fought is incorrect. Goss has just returned from an 8-mile walk clad in a heavy pea jacket and perspiring at every pore, but without mark or scratch that would indicate a fight of any kind. A dispatch from Troy says Ryan is in that city.

ROOKE-DONOVAN.

Mike Donovan and George Rooke did go to Coney Island early this morning to engage in a prize-fight, but owing to the presence of police the fight did not take place. Brooklyn sporting men say the story of the Goss-Ryan affair must have grown out of the second Rooke-Donovan fizzle.

THE LATEST DETAILS OF THE FIGHT.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 24—3:40 p. m.—The Evening Telegram, generally correct in sporting matters, publishes the following account of the fight between Ryan and Goss: It seems when the police were watching Donovan and Rooke, who, it was given out, were to fight near Coney Island, arrangements were made quietly for the meeting of Ryan and Goss. Secretly after daylight the ring was pitched in a quiet nook near Red Leary's Hotel at Fort Hamilton. No time was lost in getting the men ready for work.

IN THE RING.

There were scarcely more than a dozen spectators. When the men stripped, the superiority of Ryan, the Troy champion, was plainly perceptible. His towering height, over six feet, and his enormous muscles gave him the appearance of a giant. Goss looked puny in comparison, although in prime condition. There were niceties of science indulged in from the start. Both men were terribly in earnest, and determined to finish their work before there could be any attempt at interruption.

RYAN FORCED THE FIGHTING

from the first round and rained his gorgeous sledge-hammer blows until the Englishman was covered with blood and was a sickening spectacle. After standing gallantly up to the scratch for eleven rounds, Goss at length fell under a terrible blow which caught him under the chin. He was unable to rise, and by his seconds. Ryan, on being declared winner, left his corner and shook hands with his opponent. The parties then returned to the tavern, and were quietly smuggled out of sight.

THE SPONGE WAS THROWN UP

WASHINGTON.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—The President pro tempore laid before the Senate a communication from the President of the Smithsonian Institute, recommending an appropriation of $80,000 for completing a preparation of scientific results of Hall's Arctic expedition. Referred.

Senator Carpenter, from the Committee on Judiciary, reported favorably on the bill regulating terms of the U. S. Court in Iowa. Placed on the calendar.

On motion of Senator Carpenter, his resolution providing for a special committee to examine into the management of the Soldiers' Home in the District was taken in.

Senator Burnside moved to amend so as to instruct the Committee on Military Affairs to make investigation. Amendment adopted and resolution as amended passed.

A bill passed appropriating $15,000 for the statue of Joseph Henry, late secretary of the Smithsonian Institute.

On motion of Senator Beck the House bill amending the revenue laws, known as the Carlisle bill, was taken up.

House.

Mr. Blackburn presided in the absence of Speaker Randall.

On motion of Mr. Ryan of Kansas the Senate amendment to the House bill for the relief of settlers on the Osage Trust and Diminished Reserve Lands in Kansas was concurred in. The bill passed so amending section 2238 of the Revised Statutes as to provide that the fee in donation cases for every final certificate of 160 acres shall be $2 50; of 320 acres $5, and 640 acres $7 50.

The morning hour having been dispensed with, Mr. Blount, of Georgia, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported back the sundry civil appropriation bill, and it was referred to the committee of the whole.

Mr. Blount then moved that the House go into committee for the consideration of that bill.

Mr. Tucker raised the point of order that that motion was not in order, inasmuch as the first business in order with the committee was the revenue bill's.

The Speaker pro tem. ruled after half an hour's debate upon the points of order.

Mr. Tucker moved that the House resolve itself into a committee of the whole for consideration of the revenue bills.

This motion the Speaker ruled of higher order than Mr. Blount's motion, and it was first submitted to the House and defeated. Yeas, 110; nays, 111.

Mr. Garfield, of Ohio, submitted the views of the minority of the Committee on Ways and Means upon the tariff bill. Ordered printed.

The House then went into committee of the whole (Mr. Simonton in the chair) upon the sundry appropriation bill.

When the title of the bill was read Mr. Hooker raised the point that under the rules matters touching the revenue had precedence in committee of the whole over appropriation bills and must be considered.

The Chair overruled the point of order on the ground that the House had resolved itself into committee for the purpose of considering a special bill.

From this decision Mr. Hooker appealed and upon the decision being sustained appealed from the further decision that the committee could by a vote dispense with the first reading of the bill in full.

Mr. McKenzie demanded the reading of the bill appropriating $20,000,000 out to be read in full.

Mr. Van Vorhis—Particularly when the first million of dollars appropriated are frauds (referring to the appropriations for public buildings.

The decisions of the Chair was sustained and the reading dispensed with. Mr. Blount explained the provisions of the bill, when it was read a third time and passed.

Louisiana Republicans.

NEW ORLEANS, May 24.—The Republican Convention was called to order by A. J. Dumont, Chairman of the Central Committee. The Grant men in caucus this morning having refused to ratify the compromise agreed upon yesterday by the leaders, they began disorder at once on the meeting of the convention, by refusing to recognize Dumont's right to call the convention to order. Much confusion prevails.

The California Railroad Horror.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 24.—The train from Santa Cruz arrived early this morning bringing a number of killed and wounded by yesterday's accident. A crowd awaited the arrival, anxious for the fate of friends, and many touching scenes occurred when the ferryboat reached the slip. Two more dead had been identified, Clayton F. Merrill, of Soguel, and J. Orphits of San Francisco. There remain still unknown fourteen in all. Those most seriously injured remain at Santa Cruz, the Mayor of which city has requested that business houses be closed to-day. The wounded are comfortably provided for at the Ocean House, and, with two exceptions, are doing well.

Died To-Day.

COLUMBUS, O., May 24.—Thomas L. Brent, formerly captain in the Third regular cavalry, died here to-day of spinal disease, after a long and painful illness.

THE MISSOURI PARK.

Important Letter of the Street Commissioner Upon the Opening of Lucas Place.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Public Improvements was held this morning at ten o'clock. The president submitted his report, containing the minutiæ of the business transacted since last meeting, and the report was approved. The Street Commissioner reported upon the communication from Bernard G. Farrar, which it will be remembered called the attention of the Street Commissioner to the fact that Lucas Place, from Thirteenth to Fourteenth streets, was obstructed by curbings, trees and fountains, so that owing to these obstructions, horses and vehicles can not pass along Lucas Place between the streets named. Under ordinance 10,749 Mr. Farrar demands that the street be opened.

The Street Commissioner writes the following letter to the Board of Public Improvements:

GENTLEMEN—I beg to submit herewith a communication from Bernard G. Farrar, asking, under the provisions of ordinance 10,749, that the obstructions as claimed to exist on Lucas Place, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth, be removed.

It is a matter of very grave doubt whether Lucas Place is a public highway between the points named. It is now and it has been for many years used as a public park, formerly a part of Missouri Park, and the obstructions complained of are part of the improvements of this park. The occupation of this portion of Lucas place if it is a public street, as a part has been made on the authority and under the direction of the city government, and in my opinion no less authority than the Municipal Assembly can convert this portion of the park into a public street, and order the removal of the park improvements on the line of the street. I do not think, therefore, that ordinance 10,749 is applicable, and furthermore special legislation must be provided before this street can be opened through this park.

J. W. TURNER, Street Commissioner.

In the matter of the removal of the fence from the Olive street front of the new Custom-house, urged by Joseph Franklin and Phil. V. Taylor, a communication was presented from Mr. Alex. Cameron, the superintendent of construction, and the Street Commissioner recommended that no action be taken by the board.

The President will advertise for bids for the iron-work of the Papin street bridge on June 8. A large amount of routine business was concluded before adjourning.

An Exciting Game of Base Ball.

A very interesting game of base ball was played between the POST-DISPATCH and Times compositors yesterday morning, back of the Fair Grounds. It was quickly brought to an end by the extraordinary heavy batting of the POST-DISPATCH nine, the members of which exhausted the stock of bats. At the forced conclusion of the game the score stood 42 to 23, in favor of the POST DISPATCH boys, who settled the boasts of their opponents in short order. Very nearly all the good batting and excellent plays were made by the winning nine. Had the game lasted the Times boys would have been ingloriously beaten.

Depositions in the Butchers' and Drovers' Bank Case.

The taking of depositions in the suit filed last week asking for a receiver for the affairs of the defunct Butchers' and Drovers' Bank was begun this afternoon in Daniel Dillon's office. Mr. T. P. Huett was the first witness put on the stand, and testified as to the transfer of some real estate.

Overcome by the Heat.

Eddie Stark, a boy about fifteen years of age, was passing on Main street, between Vine and Locust, at 1:15 p. m. to-day, when he was overcome by the heat and fell to the sidewalk. He was carried into Dunham's candy factory and restoratives applied, when he rallied. Mr. Dunham had him conveyed to his home, 2613 Morgan street.

MONEY.

The market is quiet and without special change, business being light all around. Money is plenty and in light request, rates ruling easy at 5@6 per cent on call and 6@8 on time paper. Eastern exchange was dull, heavy and lower, selling at all the way from 75c premium down to par; late in the day 50c premium was asked and par bid. Government fours were in good demand, and all choice local and State securities in good demand at fair prices.

CATTLE—The movement was rather slow this forenoon, as buyers exhibited a good deal of caution and tried to break down prices. In this they did not succeed to any extent. Offerings were very large for the opening day of the calendar week, there being over one hundred and twenty five car loads, and the bulk of fair to good and prime native steers, with some mixed butchers' stuff. Local speculators, the canners and interior shippers were the leading operators this forenoon. By 10 o'clock a couple of Eastern shippers entered the market and took a fair number of head, but at slightly easier prices than those prevailing on last Friday. Reports from New York and other points not very flattering. No doubt this afternoon fair sales will be made at slight declines of stock and feeding steers slow and unchanged. Milch cows with calves dull and not wanted. Ruling quotations slow.

HOGS—The market was slow and quiet this forenoon and a couple of local packers were buying, taking mixed and good packing and paying from $3 85@4 10; butcher and select lots brought from $4 10@4 20. Higher prices were considered outside figures. On account of unfavorable reports from Chicag and other points shippers would not operate except at concessions, and wanted good Yorkers and Baltimore at $4@4 05. Offerings were quite large. Fair sales will be made this afternoon.

COTE BRILLIANTE.

Steps taken to Develop This Beautiful Suburb.

The passage of the bill now before the Railroad Committee of the House of Delegates authorizing the Citizens' Railroad Company to extend their tracks through the western suburbs and carry passengers for one fare between Fourth street and Rinkelville is almost an assured fact. Some twenty-five gentlemen, including Mr. Julius S. Walsh and Mr. P. G. Gerhardt, a member of the Railroad Committee, in five hacks and a barouche, yesterday afternoon surveyed the route along the St. Charles rock road. They also examined a supply of wine beer and cigars at Rinkel's Six Mile-House, after which they returned to their homes, thoroughly convinced that immediate and liberal legislation is necessary to develop the beautiful suburb of Cote Brilliante and vicinity.

St. John's Episcopal Church.

The services at St. John's Episcopal Church were very well attended yesterday. The rector, the Rev. J. T. Wright, preached morning and evening. His morning subject was "The Trinity," the especial teaching of the day. In the evening the service was full choral. The rector's remarks were on "Praise," an important feature of the worship of the church. An especial feature was the singing of a solo from the oratorio of "St. Paul" by Miss Blessing, the accomplished soprano of Christ Church. This accomplished vocalist has been engaged to sing at the night services at St. John's. The service hereafter on Sunday night will be full choral.

ON TO MOBERLY.

A Number of Country Delegates in the City on their Way.

St. Louis Delegates Preparing to Depart—Railroad Arrangements, Etc.

A considerable number of delegates from the country to the Moberly convention arrived in the city this morning and will go up to-night. A larger number is expected to come in on the evening trains. Among those here are ex-Gov. Woodson, of St. Joseph; Joseph Wisby, of Marshfield; John O'Day, Dr. E. A. Roberts and Jas. J. O'Day, of Springfield; James P. Walker, of Dexter; Henry N. Phillips and J. J. Miller, of Bloomfield.

Col. John O'Day, Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, goes to Moberly as a proxy for one of the Springfield delegation who could not come. Col. O'Day is understood to be a candidate for delegate-at-large to the Cincinnati Convention. None of the above delegates are pronounced Tilden men except Mr. Joseph Wisby; all the others are to Cincinnati. Mr. James O'Day told a POST-DISPATCH reporter that a portion of the Springfield delegation is friendly to Tilden, but that all of them are opposed to having the Moberly Convention committed to any particular candidate. It was learned further from Mr. O'Day that Mr. S. J. Lang, of Rolla, will be a candidate to Cincinnati from the Fifth Congressional District, and that Mr. Jerry Cravens will be a candidate from the Sixth District. Ex-Gov. Woodson will probably be presented for delegate at large by St. Joseph.

A number of

will go up to Moberly to-night, but the larger portion will wait till to-morrow and to-morrow night. Messrs. Daniel Kerwin, Chairman of the city Democratic Central Committe, and Joseph H. McEntire went up this morning so as to be on hand early in the fight.

It is expected the convention, which meets Wednesday, will last two days. All the candidates for State offices will be there and much will be done towards shaping the results of the regular State convention, which meets at Jefferson City in July.

All delegates and others who go from St. Louis or who come this way will take the WABASH, ST. LOUIS AND PACIFIC RAILROAD.

The passenger trains leave the Union Depot at 9:15 in the morning and at the same time in the evening. On to-morrow evening the passenger train will probably take a special sleeper for the delegates. The morning train arrives at Moberly a little after noon and the evening tion arrives there a little after midnight. The fare for delegates will be two cents a mile.

A CLEAN SWEEP.

Overwhelming Defeat of the Tildenites at Saturday's Primaries.

The Way the Tilden Organ Gets Its Returns.

CALIFORNIA, MO., May 23, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The Moniteau County Democratic Convention met here on Saturday and elected the following as delegates to the Moberly Convention: R. Q. Roache, John H. Anderson, W. Y. Inglish, B. F. Reavis, J. W. Brent, W. H. Sturgis. The delegation are uninstructed, but are for Seymour and Hendricks. A resolution was adopted instructing the delegation to vote for wise and discreet Democrats as delegates to the National Convention, and to oppose all instructions by the State Convention to such delegates.

The above was sent as a special to the Republican on Saturday night, but I notice that it was suppressed and a dispatch from Tipton substituted in which it is stated that the delegation is for Tilden. The fact is that, while the Democracy of Moniteau county will heartily support the nominee of the Cincinnati Convention, whoever he may be, Mr. Tilden is not their choice, and will not receive the vote of the delegation in the Moberly Convention. As one of the delegates, I object to being misrepresented, willfully, by the St. Louis Republican.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN H. ANDERSON,
Editor California Democrat.

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

Fourth street, from Dover to Stein, is now the finest drive in this part of the city.

Officer Earl killed a mad-dog yesterday at the corner of Benton and Espenschied streets.

Over 3,000 passengers were carried yesterday over the line of the Carondelet Street Railroad.

Mrs. Mary Clardy lectures to-night at the church corner of Second and Union streets. Temperance is the theme.

The plan for music at the park Sunday afternoons has been abandoned, not enough interest being taken to defray expenses.

Rev. Dr. McAnally, a resident of this part of the city, is preparing a history of Missouri Methodism which will be published in book form.

The wife of Daniel Paule, a prominent citizen and business man of this part of the city, died last evening. The funeral will take place at 2 p. m. to-morrow.

The Police Commissioners will, it is hoped, as the force is now largely increased, see the necessity of assigning to duty here at least eight additional patrolmen.

General Pitcairn Morrison, now over ninety years of age, is still quite vigorous, attributable in a measure perhaps to his being a regular reader of the POST-DISPATCH.

A large number of persons from this part of the city went on the excursion train yesterday to various points along the line of the St. L., I. M. & S. R. R. as far as Arcadia.

Pierre Chouteau, F. W. Mott, J. C. Terry, Nathan Frank, Ferd. Garesche, C. F. Hermann and C. C. Maffit constitute the new board of directors of the street railroad.

Wm. Halley will start for the seashore in a few days and will be accompanied by Jackson Halley, in hopes of being benefited by bathing in the briny ocean. They will be absent four weeks.

Carondelet branch office of the POST-DISPATCH is at the southeast corner of Taylor and Second streets. Orders for advertisements can be sent there, and they will be inserted at regular rates.

An arrangement has been made between Jupiter Lodge, Knights of Honor, and Olive Branch Lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor, by which the latter will occupy the hall of the former every alternate Friday night.

The business men of Carondelet are evidently getting ready for the good time coming. Among the leading firms may be mentioned that of Lager Bros. & Co., who have as complete an assortment of ready-made clothing and as fine a line of piece goods as can be found in St. Louis.

The appropriation having been made for straightening the road between Carondelet and the junction, all that is now necessary is for the introduction of a resolution into the Council making the proper arrangements for carrying out the work, which will probably be done by the Work-house convicts. The measure is a very important one to Carondelet.

John Greene, 11 years of age, his mother a widow living on Jackson street, between Franklin and Primm, was terribly burned last night by the explosion of a coal oil can as he was pouring oil from the can to start a fire. It was at first supposed that his recovery was impossible, but this morning he was sent to the hospital and his chances thought more favorable. His appearance, however, as he was placed in the ambulance was a most terrible one.

Henry Bowen, colored, Saturday night called upon a friend and brought his visit to an abrupt termination by falling off a porch twenty feet to the pavement. This happened on Main near Miller streets, and Henry was carried to his home on Benton street insensible, with a badly injured spine, a gash in his forehead, and bruises upon various parts of his body. He was thought to be fatally hurt, but this morning was hobbling about. He declares, however, that he will never play snap-and-catch-'em again with the girls so far from the ground.

George Shaw, colored, undertook the job last night of going through the Barracks and gathering up whatever came in his way. The adventure did not prove a success, for he now lies at the City Hospital. Pat. Heffern, the watchman, discovered him, but George was too quick for Pat., and drawing his pistol, kept the watchman a prisoner until he had an opportunity to run around a corner. As he started Heffern drew his pistol and fired three times without hitting the burglar, who, however, fell over an embankment, breaking his right leg. He was brought to the police station, and an ambulance came for him this morning and took him to the hospital.

Attempted Highway Robbery.

Sohn Dunn, of 1245 Eleventh steeet, was walking west on Market street near Sixth this morning shortly after midnight, when a negro dashed out of an alley way and knocked him down, inflicting an ugly gash over the left eye. Dunn in turn pulled his revolver, but in trying to shoot his assailant, shot himself in the middle finger of the left hand. The negro escaped and John was repaired at the city dispensary.

A Midnight Fall.

Michael Maloney, a tramp, was prowling about and through some ice-barges at the foot of Chouteau avenue last night looking for a place to sleep, so he says, when he fell into the hold of one of the barges, a distance of fifteen feet, fracturing and dislocating his left hip. He was found in a pitiable condition at about 1 o'clock this morning and sent to the City Hospital.

INVISIBLE fly screens. Get the best from the Ludlow Saylor Wire Co., 219 Market street.

A Road House Row.

Mable McCleland, a woman who has in one way and another gained considerable notoriety in the past year or two, further distinguished herself last evening by cutting Dave Riling, barkeeper in a Page avenue road house, in the left arm and leg, using a dirk knife in the process. The wounds are not dangerous. The woman made her escape.

Vandalia Line—Change of Time.

Commencing Sunday, May 23, the Daylight Express, leaving St. Louis every day at 8 o'clock a. m., will arrive in New York the next evening at 9:30, in advance of all other routes. Tickets for sale at Union Depot and at company's office, No. 100 North Fourth street.

The River's Dead.

The coarsely dressed body of a man about 45 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches high, was thrown up by the river at the foot of Labeaume street yesterday. The remains are awaiting identification at the Morgue.

Still Trembling in the Balance!

THE POLITICAL "CHESSBOARD" occupies a large share of public attention just at present. But amid the exciting scenes of debate and argument, the fact stands boldly forth to the world that our

SHOE DEPARTMENT

Has pushed high prices to the wall, and inaugurated a new departure that points the road to wealth, the first stepping-stone of which is always economy. Prosperity acquired on a foundation of sand can never stand the storms of adversity. You must earn a dollar to know its value, and there is no better way to illustrate this grand idea than in a careful expenditure of the income; habits of this kind, earnestly formed, embody the elements of success, and economy steps to the front as the leading feature. We give an illustration of this in the prices at which we offer our elegant line of Ladies' and Gents' fine hand-sewed Shoes. We offer an elegant cloth-top button shoe, for men, city made, fancy box or French toe, at $3.50; we take your measure for same at $4. A low-cut, cloth-top button shoe, London box or French toe, at $3; to order, $3.50. We call special attention to the "Evans patent" hand-sewed work for men, for which we are the sole representatives. In Ladies' fine hand-sewed work we carry six full lines of over forty different styles. These goods are the real hand-made, not the machine-sewed work that many houses palm off for first class. We guarantee you an actual saving of 25 per cent. On Saturday we will offer 3,000 pair fine kid side-lace, for infants, at 30c, worth 50c. This is the grand bargain of the season at

NEW YORK NOTES.

Ships Mysteriously Missing—The Defeat of Victoria in Arizona.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 24.—The steamship Mercator, Capt. Minne, which left this port March 3rd, has not been seen since. Her cargo, a miscellaneous one, was valued at $120,000. The ship was built at Glasgow in 1877, does not carry passengers and has a crew of thirty-two men. The owners of the cargo apprehend that the Mercator has been cut down by ice, but the ship's consignees express a belief that the machinery is disabled and that the vessel is making port under sail. The ship St. Paul, from Liverpool, reports it had three days of fog on the Newfoundland banks, during which time she had to lay-to on account of the ice. When the fog lifted the vessel was surrounded by icebergs and loose ice, and encountered several bergs for succeeding days.

OTHER MISSING VESSELS.

The brig Athlone and Barbentine Topaz have not yet arrived. They were last seen drifting helplessly in the ice just east of the Newfoundland banks.

Commander Hooper, of the revenue cutter Corwin, before sailing from San Francisco to the rescue of the Arctic whalers, said: "I have everything which I require now. What else I may need, by Government arrangement with the Alaska Commercial Company, I will find ready for me at their most northern station in Behring's Sea. There I will take on board three sledges, dogs, teams, native drivers and skins for use on land or on ice. The Government and Congress have provided everything I could ask to aid in the search for those whalers. The country has a right to expect me to make the best use of those means and to improve my opportunity of carrying relief to our citizens in distress in their dark, dreary confinement."

ALWAYS LEADS THE TRADE!

ALWAYS LEADS THE FASHIONS!

While Others are Compelled to Follow.

A good many fellow-citizens in our line of trade would rather that we didn't advertise so much, and would prefer that we wouldn't sell goods quite so cheap; and that we wouldn't keep our store and our stock looking so inviting and fresh; and that we didn't do quite so much business---and in fact and in short, that we didn't live here at all, but would leave town for their sakes.

Now, Gentlemen

don't worry a moment on our account, but just take right hold of your own business with the same industry you display in meddling with ours, and see if you cannot put a little life in your sleepy old concerns. Almost any one you meet will tell you our advice is good and timely, and that it is high time for you to pitch in and look out for yourselves, instead of watching and gaping at us, who can afford to laugh at all your envious, stealthy and futile efforts to do us harm. You are really fooling away your time, so go to work and try to boost up your trade.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

IT is quite fashionable for Republican newspapers to growl at the inactivity of Congress and complain that public interests are suffering because certain legislation is not pushed through. It is a peculiarity of the country that public interests never suffer when Congress is not in session, and there is no reason why they should suffer when Congress does nothing when it is in session. It amounts to pretty nearly the same thing, we take it.

THE spontaneity which is said to be lifting Grant into the White House was well illustrated in Illinois—the State of all others which ought to have been strong for him. After two days and nights of monkey and parrot performance the conspirators forced through the unit rule and secured an instructed delegation under protest. After all their care they raised a contest which will follow them into the Chicago convention. This, too, under the very eye of the combined Hero and Savior.

MR. MEDILL, of the Chicago Tribune, refuses to surrender to John Logan's Springfield mob. He declares that the nine districts which protested against the taking from them the right to choose delegates to Chicago will contest, and that the vote of Illinois in the National Convention will stand twenty-four for Grant and eighteen for somebody else. This will depend altogether on the complexion of the convention outside of Illinois' votes. If the Grant men are able to organize the convention they will soon settle the Illinois hash.

THERE was another display of blackguardism in Congress the other day. While the House was in committee of the whole, discussing the pension bill, Gen. Harry White and Thomas M. Bayne, two Republican representatives of Pennsylvania culture and refinement, were drawn into a wrangle. White declared that the statement made by his colleague to the effect that he did not look closely after the pension interests of his constituents was false. Mr. Bayne, in a great state of excitement, responded: "You are not worth noticing here, and you ought to say that outside." White gently remarked that he would say it again, and Bayne told him that if he did he would have to meet him outside. This is fully up to the "elsewhere" standard; but it will be observed that Mr. White didn't repeat his offensive remark. If this bit of pot-house brawling had taken place between two Southern representatives, we would have been regaled with trenchant essays in the Republican newspapers on the prevalence of "plantation manners" in Congress. As it is, we doubt very much whether a Republican organ in Pennsylvania will have nerve enough to tell Messrs. White and Bayne that they are a pair of uncouth blackguards.

IN the Conference of the M. E. Church at Cincinnati, last week, there was a lively row over the proposition to elect a negro bishop. The election for the regulation four bishops was held last week, but the colored brethren, who have long been claiming race representation in the episcopacy, forced the question by demanding an increase of the force. After a bitter and acrimonious debate the proposition was voted down very decisively. The colored clergy from the South are naturally very indignant. They claim that the Methodist Church is especially strong among the freedmen of that section but that it is necessary to have a bishop of their own race in order to maintain the influence of the church. It will be observed that the disposition of the colored man to demand recognition both in religion and politics is much greater than it was a few years ago. At first Sambo was contented with his freedom and his enfranchisement, but now that he has found out that he is an important factor he has determined to assert himself. The Methodist Church has the alternative of giving the colored people a bishop or losing a large membership, and the Conference will not be able to escape the question next year so easily. The Baptists are strong and aggressive in the South, and the negroes will drift rapidly to that faith if their claims are not soon recognized.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Cincinnati Commercial, discussing the question whether Grant could carry Ohio if a candidate for a third term of the Presidency, says:

> In 1872 there were not less than 25,000 Republicans in Ohio who voted for Greeley as against Grant, and yet Mr. Greeley, who was obnoxious to the Democrats, ran nearly that many votes behind what the Democratic vote would have been, on a full vote, in the State. This is an important fact that the Grant men should not lose sight of, and its careful presentation may throw light upon the subject.
> The increase of Republican votes in Ohio from 1860 to 1876 amounted to 108,889, being an average of 27,222 for each four years—or from one Presidential election to another. The increase in the Democratic vote during the same period was 112,265, or 28,066 for each period of four years.
> In 1868 Grant received 280,167 votes, which was less than the average increase over the vote of Mr. Lincoln in 1864, and in 1872 Grant received 281,852 votes, only 1,685 more than in 1868, when, compared with the vote of 1864, and allowing the average increase, his vote should have been over 305,000. Now, take the Democratic vote of 1868, which was 238,621, add the average four years' increase of 28,000, and to this add the 25,000 Republican votes actually cast for Greeley, and it would have given him a majority of 10,000 over Grant.
> Hayes carried the State in 1876 by only 6,000 majority, while Grant carried it in 1872 by over 37,000, but Hayes received 48,846 more votes in 1876 than Grant did in 1872, showing the regular increased Republican vote of 27,000, and a return of nearly 22,000 of the Liberal Republican votes that went off to Greeley in 1872. That election of 1876 discloses another matter that the Grant men should not lose sight of. The Democratic vote for Mr. Tilden was 323,182, or an increase of 78,861 over the vote for Greeley, and a majority of 40,330 over Grant's vote of 1872.

PERSONAL.

—Send a fast trotting horse and a pair of bulldogs to Gen. Grant at Galena, and he would probably forget all about a third term.

—Josh Billings is no longer a philosopher. He has been engaged in a lawsuit, and estimates his expenses while it lasted at a dollar a minute.

—The New York Graphic has a report that the object of the visit of J. C. Flood to New York is to attend the marriage of his daughter to U. S. Grant, Jr.

—Mary Anderson's refined and elegant stepfather has made $50,000 this season by simply standing at theater doors and allowing tobacco juice to drizzle on his shirt bosom.

—Miss Rhoda Broughton has written a new story with the strange title of "Second Thoughts." It is to be published in England next week. It is said to be full of wit and humor.

—A traveler in South America reports a monkey with two tails. Now we have the Darwinian progenitor of the man who stands in a steel-pen coat near the door of the opera and says, "Bravah-h!"

—Gen. Garfield is said to be especially fond of the society of strong legal minds, and is a particular friend of Judge Black. Though utterly opposed in politics, each keenly appreciates the intellect of the other.

—Jones Very, the Massachusetts poet and mystic, died ten days ago at his home in Salem. He was sixty-seven years old, and, though a man of unusual gifts, was comparatively little known even in the town where he lived.

—Supreme Court Justice Stephen J. Field is sixty-three. As a California forty-niner he became a lawyer, and his first fee was an ounce of gold. He had his fights, became a politician, was made a judge, reformed the laws and was a member of the Union League and a war Democrat. Lincoln appointed him to the Supreme Court in 1863. He was married in 1859 at St. Louis, but is childless. He is large, with hair and beard that are inclined to curl.

A Pair of 'Em.

[From the N. O. Picayune (Dem.), May 19.]

Shrewd observers have not failed to notice the anxiety of Republicans that Mr. Tilden should be nominated at Cincinnati, and the anxiety of Democrats that Gen. Grant should be nominated at Chicago. Hardly could either of those distinguished gentlemen rejoice more over his own nomination than would the most bitter enemies of his party, and that is saying a great deal. The inference is clear that neither Mr. Tilden nor Gen. Grant is regarded as strong before the country. The reasons upon which this judgment is based are apparent to even a superficial student of the situation.

Tilden in Missouri.

[From To-day's Anzeiger des Westens.]

The Republican of this city shouts hurrah for the pretended victory of the Tilden party in Missouri and assures its credulous readers that the Democratic State Convention of Missouri has a majority for Tilden. We do not believe a word of it, but on the contrary believe that the triumphant shout of the Republican over its pretended victory in the State is only intended to withdraw attention from its real and decisive defeat in St. Louis.

On With the Dance.

[From the New York Sun.]

There are many reasons why it is desirable that he should be nominated. It will put the third term and imperialism thoroughly to the test. The defeat of Grant—which we regard as morally certain—will put an end to third termism for a century to come. Then nominate Grant! Let him be put up and knocked down! The country will breathe more freely after the interesting performance.

Singing Small.

[From the Kansas City Times.]

The St. Louis Republican is singing low. A while ago it was a blatant Tilden howler. It is not so stupid that it cannot read the signs of the times. A while ago it howled for instructing the Missouri delegation for Tilden; it now thinks the delegation should go uninstructed. This is significant.

The Show Broken Up.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

Evidently the great Administration traveling combination has been entirely broken up. The new Postmaster-General is not an erring brother, and no Administration show can go upon the road without an erring brother.

Those Awful Documents.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial.]

If the Chicago Convention could get a bird's-eye view of the Democratic pigeon-holes in this country that are crammed with damaging records against Grant's administration, it would never nominate him.

Edison's Chance.

[From the Cincinnati Commercial.]

It is to be hoped Prof. Edison will take plenty of time to perfect his electric light. There will be so much electricity in American politics this year that his lamps will not be needed till after November.

Another Conundrum.

[From the New York Tribune.]

Does anybody suppose the proceedings of Senator Logan in Illinois are calculated to draw independent Republicans to the support of a third term, in case that issue is thrust on the party?

A Well Grounded Suspicion.

[From the New York Tribune.]

There seems to be a suspicion in the World newspaper office that if Tilden is renominated there will be some allusions to ciphers during the coming campaign. It is barely possible.

Three Credulous Ones.

[From the New York World.]

Very likely Courtney was really ill yesterday, but we fear nobody except Messrs. Beecher, Blaine and Whittaker will believe it.

Samuel's Jaw.

[From the Atlanta Constitution.]

Mr. Tilden may not cut his own chops, but there is no doubt that he chews 'em; and this, after all, is the test.

A Joke.

[From the Chicago Times.]

If the Chicago convention hold till Friday, it may take Fish.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The Noble Rowmen.

ST. LOUIS, May 22, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please state in this evening's issue of your paper whether Riley has ever beaten Hanlan in a boat race. In answering you will oblige a number of your readers. N. M.

[Riley and Hanlan pulled one regular match about a year ago which was decided a tie. Hanlan claimed the race, and refused to row it over again.—ED. P.-D.]

The Right Man in the Wrong Place.

ST. LOUIS, May 24, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

On Saturday last I was placed by some of my good friends of the Eighteenth Ward in a wrong position in reference to the Presidential question. It is well known to you, as well as by all others with whom I have had any conversation on the subject, that I am not a "Tilden man," nor do I desire to have a delegation sent to Cincinnati instructed to vote for Tilden or any one else, but prefer to have a delegation sent of our strongest and best men, uninstructed, who will go to Cincinnati and, after taking in the whole case as it may there appear, will go for that man who is most likely to succeed, and who will best subserve the true interests of the country and of the Democratic party. I am well satisfied with the delegation selected from the Eighteenth Ward, and know they will faithfully represent the Democracy at the convention. JOHN J. HOLLIDAY.

A Card from Dentist McNamara.

ST. LOUIS, May 22, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If trifling matters are to be taken notice of, they may as well be correctly stated. Your issue of yesterday contains, doubtless through inadvertence, a rather distorted item in which I am made one of the dramatis personæ. The facts are: Mr. Cullen, some time since, engaged my services to make him a set of false teeth, for which he was to pay $25, $15 of which he paid in advance. The mouth was a difficult one to fit, and Mr. C. (I am sorry to say, for he is not otherwise a bad man), came to my office several times in a condition unsuitable to be operated upon. Several days since Mr. C., while in a convivial state, met me in the street, and, with more animation than grace, insisted upon my joining him in a flowing bowl. Somewhat indignant, I refused him rather warmly, and the next morning I was served with a summons to appear before a Justice to answer to a demand of $15 from Mr. Cullen. I have taken no legal steps in the matter whatever. Mr. Cullen has since, as, indeed, speaks well for the man when in his proper senses, apologized to me, and said he either had withdrawn his suit, or intended to do so. His teeth are ready, and were when he entered his suit.

Respectfully,

M. C. McNAMARA, D. D. S.

How Tilden Strength is Obtained.

HARRISTON, COOPER CO., MO., May 21.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You have seen that the Democracy of Cooper assembled in Boonville on the 15th inst., and instructed the delegates to Moberly to vote for Tilden delegates to the National Convention to be held in Cincinnati. I know not how many composed our County Convention, but venture to say that there were not fifty Democrats in the meeting. This I do know, that at least three-fourths of the Democrats of Cooper are opposed to Tilden's nomination, and if I were to say nine-tenths I do not think it would be far out of the way. Being in public business, seeing and talking with a great many men, I have yet to find the first Democrat who is in favor of Tilden. They all believe that his nomination means defeat; that even if he should be elected Grant would thrust him aside with greater facility than he was to make room for Hayes. The fact is that there is a clique in Boonville who are for Tilden, but the great body of Democrats of Cooper believe it suicidal to nominate him. If Grant is nominated he and his revolutionary backers intend to inaugurate him, and will do so unless the Democrats elect a man of nerve and determination—such a man as John M. Palmer or Hancock, who would not permit themselves to be defrauded out of their election.

COOPER.

DEITY IN POLITICS.

Clergymen to Pray for Good Presidential Candidates.

[From the New York Sun, 22d.]

The following paper with signatures was yesterday sent to the office of the Sun for publication:

> In view of the fact that the nominating conventions of the political parties in June next will designate those citizens to whom the choice of the people for the Chief Magistrate of these United States for the four years next ensuing will be restricted, the undersigned ask their brethren of all denominations to unite with them in making Sabbath, the 30th of May, a special occasion for prayer to Almighty God that he will vouchsafe to guide and direct these assemblies in the choice of men fit for the suffrages of the people.
> Roswell D. Hitchcock, R. S. Storrs, Henry W. Bellows, Thos. S. Hastings, C. C. Tiffany, A. P. Putnam, E. H. Chapin, R. Heber Newton, J. A. M. Chapman, C. H. Parkhurst, W. Ormiston, J. H. Rylance, Llewellyn D. Bevan, S. M. Hamilton, Arthur Brooks, Wm. M. Taylor, S. S. Mitchell, W. I. Sabine, Lindsay Parker.

It was ascertained that the Rev. R. Heber Newton, pastor of the Anthon Memorial Church in West Forty-eighth street, was the originator of this plan for influencing the coming National Conventions at Cincinnati and Chicago.

Mr. Newton, in reply to inquiries made by the reporter last evening, said that he was a member of the Independent Republican Association of this city. He thought it was high time that the honest, respectable people of the country had something to say in the selection of their public servants. He was a Republican, but did not believe in machine politics. Perhaps the regular trade politicians of both parties were past praying for, and yet if the clergy generally would take up the matter and say a few words from their pulpits on the Sunday preceding the conventions, it might do a great deal of good. For his own part he was strongly opposed to the nomination either of Grant or Blaine, but of course every clergyman would have better taste than to mention names from their pulpits. Such a thing as the clergy uniting in a plea to the Almighty imploring Him to guide the councils of any political convention was, he believed, unprecedented. He believed that the present danger to the country called for some such intervention. It was very evident that the leading men of one party at least were determined to force a candidate upon the people irrespective of their wishes, and it was time that the wheels of the political machine were blocked. He had drawn up the paper printed above only two days ago, and had sent it out for the approval of a few representative clergymen of this city and Brooklyn. He had been absent in Philadelphia ever since, and he was glad to learn that the clergymen were so ready to sign the request. The appeal might produce no visible effect, and yet he thought that if sensible advice were given to the people and earnest prayers offered up to God for the guidance of the two great political conventions about to assemble, it would result in bringing divine aid to the selaction of the man who for the next four years is to be the Chief Magistrate of this great nation.

The Rev. Dr. Chapin said that although he was just ready to sail for Europe, and would not be here on the day appointed, he readily signed the paper, believing it to be a good thing. His pulpit would be filled by another on that day, and no doubt his substitute would speak earnestly and pray fervently for the success of the plan.

The Rev. Dr. Bevan, of the Fifth Avenue Brick Church, said he believed that all things on earth were subject to the will of a Supreme Ruler, and he therefore thought it very proper for the people to beseech the Deity to intercede in any particular case. He had seen but few political gatherings in this country, but he was satisfied that they were very tame affairs compared with those he had witnessed in the old country. He thought that this country was sadly in need of political reform, and that the people would never be as prosperous as they ought to be until they had adopted the doctrine of free trade, a doctrine which made France rich and happy, while Germany and other countries which rejected it were left to suffer the ills of national pauperism.

Singular Freak of a Needle.

[From the Crisfield (Md.) Leader.]

A few weeks ago a young lady of Salisbury was getting into a carriage, a sewing needle was by some means forced into her thigh, but being considered a trifling matter, little or no attention was paid to it at the time. Several days after this occurrence, however, her ankle pained her very much, and on examination it was found that the needle was the cause of it. In her efforts to get it out it broke, and she only succeeded in getting one part (the eye half) of it out. The point part remained, and two days after she felt that just below the knee, but was still unable to get it out. Two weeks then elapsed and she felt something in her throat, but the obstruction was supposed to be a fish-bone. After several efforts to remove it she at last succeeded, and it proved to be the point part of the needle. Thus, in a few weeks' time, a common sewing needle enters a person at the thigh, makes its way down to the ankle, then retraces its steps and goes up the body and comes out at the throat. This may appear to be an incredible story, but it is true nevertheless. It is vouched for by a gentleman of unquestionable veracity.
